Insurance perils flu shot program

The Arlington Heights swine flu inoculation program is in jeopardy because volunteer workers are demanding liability coverage.

George Weinand, village health director, Monday said professional workers recruited for the program have indicated they will be unable to participate unless liability coverage is provided.

But health officials are continuing to recruit volunteers for the three-day inoculation program Sept. 11-13.

"WE WILL PROCEED with our plans until we are told not to. It's a policy decision that must be made by the village board," Weinand said.

The Arlington Heights Village Board was scheduled to discuss the unresolved question of liability Monday night, but its meeting was canceled because of the death of Alan J. Vargo, an Arlington Heights patrolman who was struck and killed by a motorist Sunday morning as he directed traffic near an accident.

The board is expected to decide at its meeting Aug. 2 whether the village should go ahead with its plans to par-

Viking I in landing attempt

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — America's Viking 1 spacecraft was set Monday to attempt a risky landing on Mars at 7:12 a.m. CDT Tuesday to conduct the first search for life on another planet.

"Everything is go," said mission director Thomas Young. "We find ourselves in a very good condition."

The lander had to perform with split second accuracy to descend from orbit 11,400 miles high to a planet that mysteriously destroyed two Russian landing craft seconds before and after touchdown in 1971 and 1973.

Viking's descent to a desert basin called Chryse was fraught with danger. Of particular concern were possible landing site obstacles too small to be seen in orbital pictures.

"We really don't know what the probability is of landing safely on Mars," Young said. "Exploration means you take some chances."

Viking's landing attempt, 16 days behind the original schedule, comes 7 years to the day after Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin first stepped foot on the moon.

President Ford declared Tuesday "Space Exploration Day" in honor of Apollo and Viking. He was expected to monitor the landing from the White House.

The robot's first job after touchdown was to turn on one of two cameras to radio back the first picture of Mars seen from the surface. The initial black and white photo, expected back on Earth at 9:08 a.m., was to be a closeup of a footpad resting on the Martian soil. Its next shot was planned to be a broad panoramic view of the landscape.

The landing was timed so it would be late afternoon when Viking put down in an area scarred with outlines of what appear to be once mighty rivers of an earlier, wetter age on Mars. Stark shadows from sunlight easily penetrating the thin Martian atmosphere will help scientists study the photos.

Viking 1 was a three-legged stand-in for scientists 214 million miles away. In addition to three biology detectors, the nuclear-powered craft carried in-

Fatal accident ends dream

Alan Vargo—he always wanted to be a 'copper'

by JOE SWICKARD

Star and shield No. 162 were pinned together on the edge of the desk. Outside the window, the flag seemed unusually large as it flew at half-staff for Arlington Heights Patrolman Alan J. Vargo.

Vargo's police identification photograph showed the young man looking directly into the mug shot camera.

Looking directly ahead, Vargo, 24, had married in September and bought a house two months ago.

"I WAS TALKING with his parents," said Acting Chief Paul Buckholz. "They said he had wanted to be a copper for a long time."

Vargo had taken the steps to be a good cop, too. After graduating from

New Trier West High School, he received an associate of arts degree in law enforcement from Southern Illinois University in 1972 and then joined the Arlington Heights Police Dept. as a cadet.

Still looking forward, he traded the khaki cadet's uniform shirt for the blue shirt of a police patrolman just a year later.

His personnel file contained a letter from the father of an 18-year-old driver ticketed by Vargo.

THE FATHER wrote to compliment the department and Vargo — "this caliber of man and the Village of Arlington Heights for the image they project through this department."

Vargo, the father wrote, had demonstrated to his son that policemen do care about teen-agers and are willing to treat them with courtesy and respect.

Sunday midnight was the first day of Vargo's rotation on the midnight shift.

About 2 a.m. he responded to a personal injury accident at Arlington Heights Road and Olive Street.

HE WAS DIRECTING traffic around the crash scene when a car came out of the night and killed him.

His death was the first of an Arlington Heights policeman in the line of duty.

Monday morning should have been a day of anticipation for Buckholz as he settled into his role as acting chief following the retirement party Sunday of long-time chief L. W. Calderwood.

Instead, he was making funeral arrangements for one of his men.

The shield and badge were on his desk as he took telephone calls that set up memorial funds for Vargo. There were other departments to contact, uniform designations to make and official notices to post.

Sgt. Jack Weber, the department's traffic officer, was calling in the funeral route instead of the regular routing of commuters and race track patrons.

A hurriedly hand-written note had been dropped off at The Herald offices. Signed "An Arlington Heights Police Officer," it warned drivers to think of Vargo next time they got behind the wheel.

Buckholz shook his head.

"Alan was a good young man and a good cop. He's the kind of guy we wanted on the force," he said.

FLAGS FLEW at half mast Monday for Arlington Heights Patrolman Alan J. Vargo, 24, who was struck and killed Sunday by a motorist as he directed traffic at an accident scene. He was the first village patrolman killed in the line of duty. Vargo had joined the force in 1973.

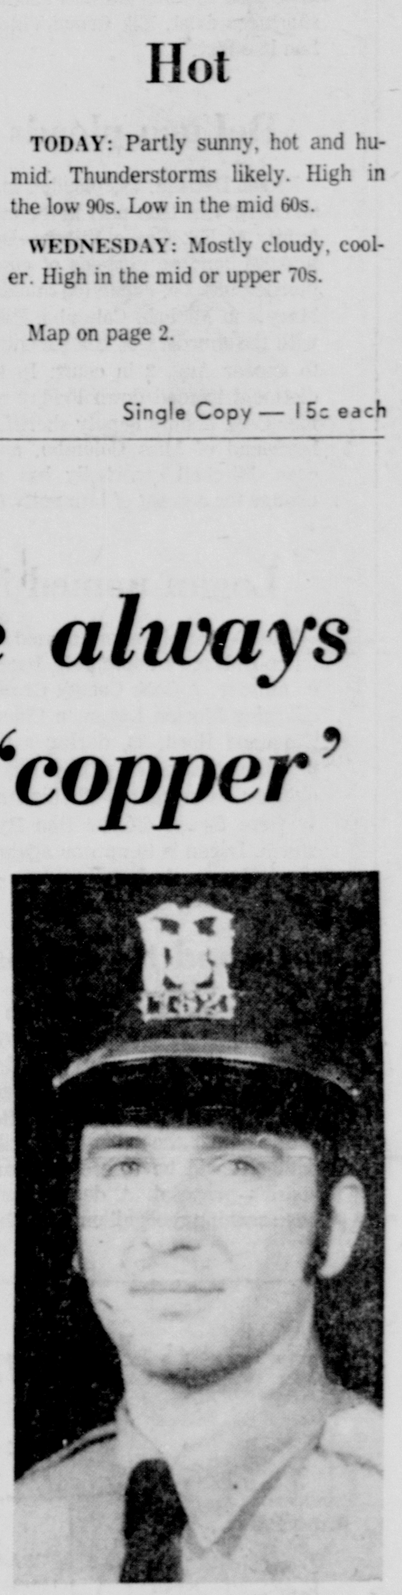

Memorial funds for patrolman

Two memorial funds have been established for Arlington Heights Patrolman Alan J. Vargo, killed Sunday morning while directing traffic at an accident scene.

Donations can be made to the funds established at the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights or the First Arlington National Bank. Employes of both banks will assist persons wishing to make contributions in his name.

The 100 Club of Cook County, an organization to assist the families of policemen killed in the line of duty, will pay off the financial obligations of the dead officer, who is survived by his wife of 10 months, Teri.

His police star and shield will be retired by the department. They will be mounted and framed along with his formal department photograph for display in the police station. He had been a member of the department since 1973.

Planning a Moon trip? Put yourself on hold

by JOE SWICKARD

You can leave your space helmet in the closet when you pack for your summer vacation. The airlines say the Moon flights are already booked up.

And don't try to ask to be placed on Pan Am's waiting list. There are 93,000 persons signed up ahead of you.

A call to Pan Am's reservation service in Chicago produced a response of, "The Moon, sir? Just a moment."

True to her word, the reservationist was back on the line in just a moment with: "I'm sorry, the list is closed. I checked with the manager and we are not taking any more names until there are scheduled trips."

PAN AM STARTED taking applications for lunar trips on Christmas Eve in 1968 to cash in on the interest in the Apollo Moon flights just beginning about that time, according to a spokesman with the airline's public relations office in New York.

"We took names of persons for a couple of years. But after we got 93,000 people on the list we had to cut it off. It was getting to be an accounting and bookkeeping problem," the spokesman said.

The lucky 93,000 persons who managed to sign up in time received a numbered identification card from Pan Am to present at ticket counters when flights begin, he said.

Today

He did not say whether the special cards were good for 21-day excursion fare discounts or a bargain rate on the rental of a lunar rover car for those sight-seeing jaunts around the craters.

Even without the special deals, politicians, movie stars, (ah, yes, those heavenly bodies) and business figures put their names on the dotted line for the flights of the future.

ALTHOUGH THE PAN Am spokesman said the lunar list, like all their reservation lists, is secret, he did say a couple of newsmen were issued the first two cards.

Even though the list has been closed for more than five years, he said Pan Am still is receiving applications for the cards.

"It seems like whenever there's renewed space activity, we get

Area still plagued by water shortage

Water — and the lack of it — continues to be a problem for Northwest suburban officials and area residents. Showers Monday afternoon brought the first significant rainfall in nearly four weeks, but declining underground water levels and a malfunctioning well forced city officials in Rolling Meadows Sunday to order a halt to sprinkling. Residents on the city's South Side, who are only allowed to water on Sundays because of a sprinkling restriction were told by police to turn off sprinklers Sunday. And in Elk Grove Village, Village Pres. Charles Zettek has called for a special committee-of-the-whole meeting of the village board to decide if a building moratorium will be ordered because of the water situation. Residents have said the moratorium should be imposed as long as the water shortages exist. Elk Grove Village currently has a total sprinkling ban in effect.

DeLuca pleads innocent

Frank DeLuca, 39, pleaded innocent Monday at his arraignment on charges he took part in the torture slaying of the Frank Columbo family of Elk Grove Village. DeLuca was ordered held in lieu of $250,000 bond on charges of conspiracy and solicitation to commit murder and six counts of murder in the May 4 slayings of Frank, Mary and Michael Columbo. Patricia Columbo, 20, also is charged with the murders of her parents and brother. She and DeLuca are to appear Aug. 2 in court. In a related matter, a suppressed indictment handed down Friday names Roman Sobcynski, 35, a former Cook County deputy sheriff, and Lanyon Mitchell, 24, a former boyfriend of Miss Columbo, as unindicted co-conspirators in the case. Mitchell reportedly has agreed to aid investigators in exchange for a grant of immunity from prosecution.

Logan named in 2nd murder

The 30-year-old man accused of murdering a Buffalo Grove woman on Chicago's South Side June 13 was indicted Monday for another murder. A Cook County Grand Jury handed down an indictment charging Marion Logan, a Chicago carpenter, with the murder of Raymond Hord, 33, during a tavern dispute over a woman. The indictment came only three days after Logan appeared in court on charges he murdered Phyllis Anderson, 51, after she and her family were forced off the Dan Ryan Expressway during a thunderstorm. Logan is to appear again in court Aug. 10 in connection with the Anderson slaying.

Flood threatens strike

A Combined Counties Police Assn. official Monday night said Wheeling employes "will do anything and everything we have to" to gain union representation. John Flood, president of the CCPA, told the village board village employes "will fight politically and every possible way we can." He said the fight could include lawsuits against the village, a strike and "anything we have to. The public should be aware the employes aren't going to accept the board's proposal. A deep-schism exists." Village employes have been seeking recognition from the village.

Home-rule panel submits report

New county fund sources urged

by KURT BAER

A grab bag of new revenue measures was recommended to the Cook County Board Monday by the county's home-rule study commission.

A countywide lottery, off-track betting, an employe head tax, liquor, cigaret and utility taxes are among the money makers discussed in a 15-page report from the study commission.

A controversial one-cent-a-gallon gasoline sales tax proposed by Cook County Board Pres. George W. Dunne is not mentioned.

The commission specifically recommends that the county not seek state authority to levy a county income tax or to license for revenue.

OTHER PROPOSALS made by the 21-member commission include:

- Agreements between Cook County and suburbs that border unincorporated land to predetermine future municipal boundaries. Once agreement is reached, "inherently local functions such as liquor control, zoning and building regulations would be transferred or ceded to the municipalities for local administration in the affected areas."
- Establishment of county branch offices in five suburban districts.
- Creation of a countywide consumer protection agency.
- Use of the Cook County Sheriff's office to provide countywide crime reporting and information and provision for the county sheriff to contract with municipal police departments for better patrol of unincorporated areas.
- Action to reduce the number of special taxing districts within the county by "gradually transferring the functions of those districts to municipal governments or Cook County."
- Establishment of a department of intergovernmental affairs, a department of revenue to collect fees and administer all non-real estate taxes and the change of the post of Cook County recorder from an elected to an appointed position.

The most controversial political recommendation calls for a change in the election of Cook County Commissioners from at large to single-member districts that would cross Chicago-suburban boundaries.

Suburban board members already have charged that such a change would lead to gerrymandering and a loss of suburban representation on the board.

At present, 10 county board members are elected in Chicago and six from suburban Cook County.

Comr. Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Village, called the proposal for single-member districts "a rape of the suburban areas."

Speaking after Monday's board meeting, Hansen said it would be easy for him to draw a map that would give Chicago control of as many as 12 of the 16 districts in Cook County. "If I can do that, I'm certain Pres. Dunne could come up with an even greater disproportionment," he said.

HANSEN SAID HE would support single-member districts if city and suburban districts are kept separate and if city and suburban commissioners approve the new districts independently.

The Home Rule Study Commission report was accepted and put on file by the county board Monday over the objections of Hansen and other suburban commissioners who called for public hearings on the various recommendations.

None of the commission's proposals is binding, although the head tax already has been proposed and the liquor tax enacted.

Hansen charged that the study commission met secretly for more than two years before issuing its report. The time for public hearings is "long overdue," he said.

"Once again, the county board under the solid direction of Pres. Dunne has kept everything in the back room," he said.

HANSEN FAULTED THE report for failing to include estimates of the savings or revenue attached to its various recommendations. He said the report also said nothing about changes in county board procedures.

"It proposes the office of county attorney, but says absolutely nothing about insuring that there is legal counsel for suburban as well as city commissioners," he said.

Dunne said that the report was "received and filed" and there would be no public hearings unless the recommendations were introduced as proposed ordinances.

"I don't think we should waste the time of this board to go through a lot of material that may be completely irrelevant to our needs and desires," Dunne said.

Gasoline tax ruling due Aug. 16

by KURT BAER

A second hearing on Cook County's proposed gasoline sales tax is expected within the next 10 days with a final decision by the county board on Aug. 16, Cook County Board Pres. George W. Dunne said Monday.

Meanwhile, there were signs that a gas tax will be challenged in court if enacted.

Donald Woodrick, executive director of the Midwest Petroleum Marketers Assn., said Monday that the association "would have to take some type of class action in court" if the one-cent-a-agallon sales tax is put through. through.

The Midwest Petroleum Marketers Assn. represents gasoline wholesalers and has encouraged public protest of the proposed gas tax in recent newspaper advertisments.

"THERE HAVE BEEN numerous telegrams, letters and telephone calls to Pres. Dunne's office," Woodrick said.

He called the proposed ordinance "vague" because it was meant to apply only to retail gasoline sales, but could also be construed to affect the sale of diesel fuel, jet fuel and L. P. gas.

Dunne estimates that the one-cent tax will raise $18 million a year. He said the money is needed to give county employes a 10 per cent pay raise.

"YOU CAN'T SINGLE out the motoring public to pay for salary increases for 11,000 county employes. If that's what they want to do, they should find some other source of revenue that affects everybody in the county equally," Woodrick said.

Dunne came up with the gas tax after he was forced to withdraw a controversial $3-per-employe head tax proposal.

The county board's finance committee held its first hearing on the gas tax July 12 when 14 persons spoke against the measure. Dunne said Monday the committee would hold a second hearing sometime within the next 10 days before making its recommendation to the county board.

Cook County accounted for nearly half the 5.4 billion gallons of gasoline sold in Illinois last year, Woodrick said.

Juvenile court urged in 3rd Dist.

by DAN BARREIRO

A special Northwest Municipal Conference preliminary report urging the establishment of an area juvenile court branch of the 3rd Dist. Court was released Monday night.

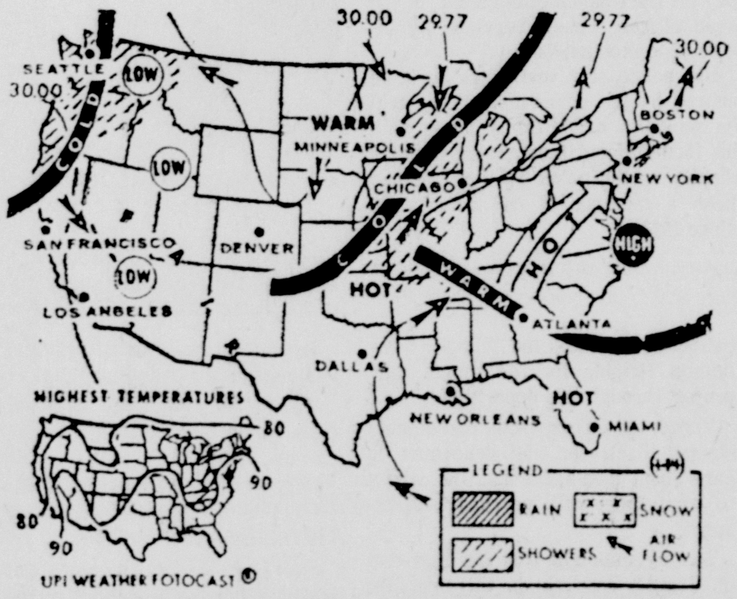

Members of the conference's juvenile court committee met Monday evening in Schaumburg, but after seeing the report for the first time decided to study it further before submitting it to the conference and to the Cook County Circuit Court, which would rule on creating a court branch. Circuit Court Chief Judge John S. Boyle would make the ruling.

The preliminary report said that the villages and cities in the conference have "more than adequate" programs in crime control and rehabilitation. But William H. Muhlenfeld, executive director of the conference, who has worked extensively on the report, said that the committee's studies showed "due process of law" may be denied to juveniles due to lack of a branch court.

Juveniles accused of crimes currently must go either to the Cook County Criminal Court in Chicago or the suburban Niles juvenile court branch.

The report states that the present case load for the seven probation officers and one supervisor in the Third Municipal District Court is 220 per officer. The report adds that a recommendation established in 1929 by the Illinois Crime Survey stated that the ratio should reach no higher than 50 per officer.

Prisoner identity check fails to match bus kidnap tip

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (UPI) — A check of records of those sentenced to state prison in Madera County failed Monday to provide any identities to match a tip three San Quentin Prison inmates plotted an act of revenge similar to the kidnaping of 26 youngsters and their bus driver.

Sheriff Ed Bates said his wife, Freda, an unpaid Sheriff's Department clerk, checked all the Superior Court records dating back to 1971 and she could not find any names which would hasten capture of the armed men who hijacked the bus last week.

Earlier in the day police reported they were getting close to making arrests.

In a related development, authorities disclosed that clothing, notebooks, the bus driver's wallet and the shoes of the kidnap victims were discovered along a lonely road near Saratoga, Calif., in the Santa Cruz mountains west of here in an area reported to be the hideout of terrorist groups who pulled off two big dynamite thefts in the past year.

The discovery was made 50 miles southwest of the quarry near Livermore where the children and bus driver Frank Ray, 55, were imprisoned in a buried truck-trailer van. They escaped after 16 hours in the makeshift prison Friday.

As each of the kidnap victims entered the underground prison last week the kidnapers made them give up some personal possession, which authorities believed the kidnapers planned to use in a possible ransom plot. All the items were being checked for fingerprints.

An informant told investigators he overheard three San Quentin inmates discuss the plot. He said one of the trio had "some reason for revenge" against a Madera County community. The discussions reportedly occurred last year. Bates, without elaborating, said his wife was looking for defendants named "Al" or "Randall." But he said, she found nothing.

Asked by reporters whether the gunmen had an elaborate escape route, the sheriff said, "It didn't have to be elaborate. The could have gone underground like in the Patty Hearst case."

He also said in an afternoon press briefing that the crime took "a great deal of planning. This must have cost somebody a lot of money to pull this off." He said the vans cost $5,000 each.

Bates again criticized the Justice Department for ordering withdrawal of the FBI from the case.

"It's like three doctors washing up for an operation and two deciding that the patient wasn't theirs and pulling out," he said.

In Washington, Atty. Gen. Edward Levi said he is seeking facts to give the FBI jurisdiction to resume investigation.

The FBI quickly entered the case but withdrew after it was found the children had been taken to a quarry without crossing a state line. Two FBI agents, however, remain to maintain liaison with local investigators.

'Everything is go' for landing on Mars

struments to analyze the Martian soil, monitor the planet's weather and listen for marsquakes.

The spacecraft was on its own for the crucial landing operations. Because of the time required for radio signals to reach Earth, Jet Propulsion Laboratory controllers had to wait 18 minutes to find out if it worked.

The descent sequence was programmed to start at 4:51 a.m. when one of two computers aboard the lander was to fire explosive charges to split three nuts on bolts linking the lander to its orbiting mothership. Three springs were to gently push the two craft apart.

Seven minutes later, eight small rocket engines were to fire for 23 minutes to begin the lander's descent. Viking's speed then was expected to be 3,040 miles per hour.

Even though Mars' atmosphere is 100 times less dense than Earth's, there is enough "air" above Mars to build up 2,730-degree Fahrenheit heat of friction on the outside of Viking's saucer-like heatshield.

This atmospheric drag was expected to absorb 90 per cent of Viking's descent energy. To further slow the spacecraft, Viking carried a 53-foot wide dacron supersonic parachute set to pop out 19,376 feet above Mars.

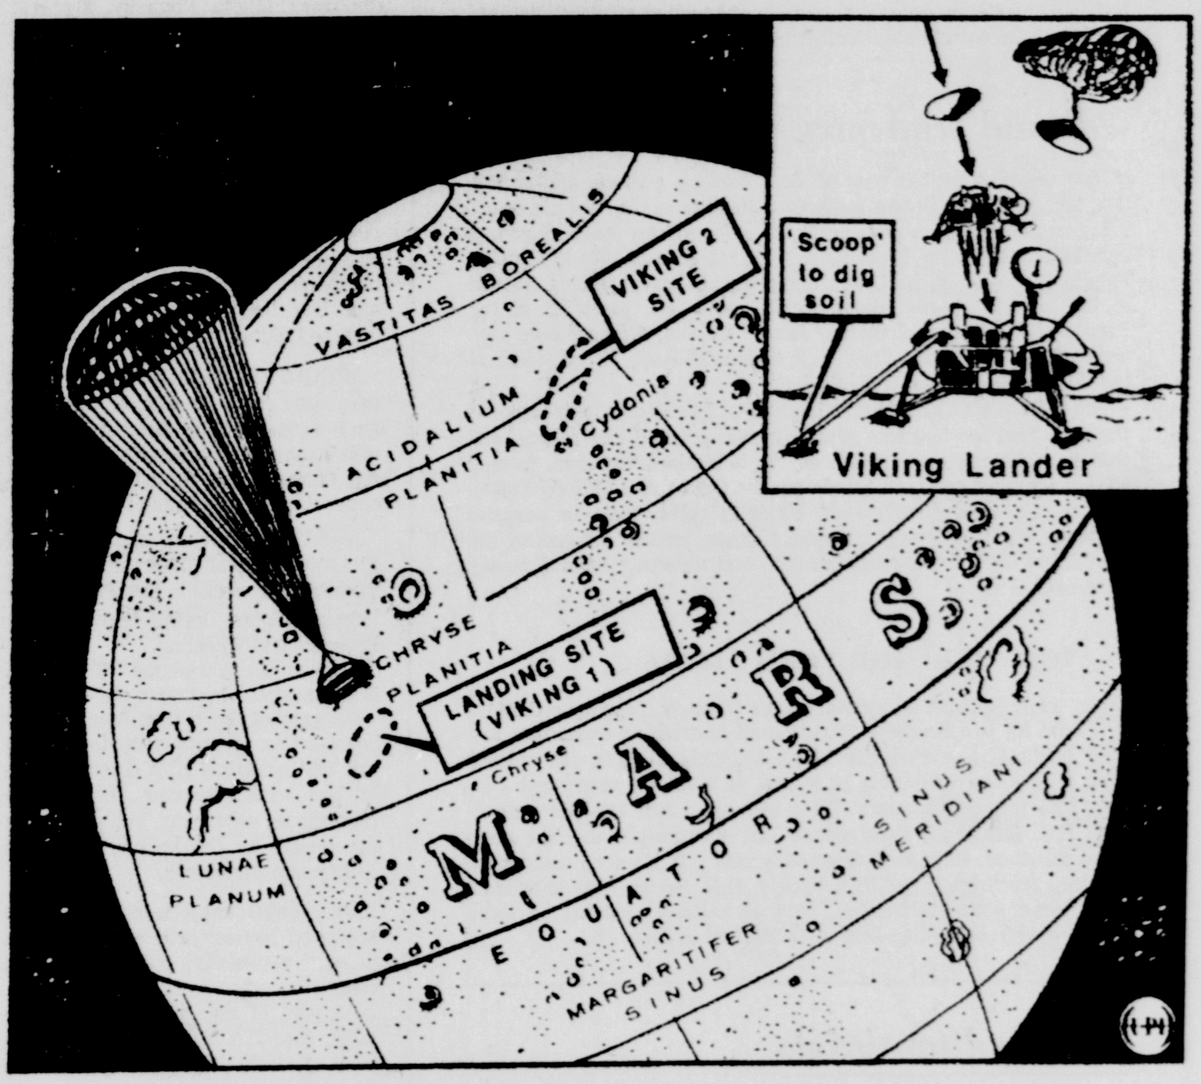

The Martian atmosphere, however, is not thick enough to allow the parachute to ease Viking to the ground like an Earth landing. So, with Viking less than a mile high, it was to fire three braking rockets to complete the descent under the direction of two radar altimeters.

The Soviet Union meantime is waiting to see what Viking finds on Mars before planning further attempts to explore the planet. Russian scientists made a big push in 1973 and 1974 to land instrument packages safely on Mars, but the ambitious fourshot expedition ended in failure with only one orbiter working, and then for only a few days.

The Soviets skipped the 1975 Mars launch opportunity that the United States used to send Vikings 1 and 2 to Mars and a Soviet space official said future Mars mission planning awaits the Viking outcome.

"It depends on the results we're hoping to have at our disposal soon by your Viking missions," Dr. Mikhail Y. Marov said at an international space research meeting in June in Philadelphia.

"It would be foolish to plan our missions without data that will be coming very soon."

VIKING I'S LANDER passed its last test in Martian orbit Monday and appeared ready to land early this morning in a desert basin on the northern face of Mars. The craft will parachute to a soft landing on the western slopes of an ancient drainage basin called Chryse. Viking II is still en route to the planet and is scheduled to land on a northern plain September 4.

Ford asks permanent prosecutor's office

President Ford urged Congress Monday to establish a permanent special prosecutor's office to handle any criminal charges against holders of high government office. In a letter to House Speaker Carl Albert, Ford urged the changing of a pending bill known as the "Watergate Reform Bill" — to provide for a permanent office instead of appointment of temporary special prosecutors on a case by case basis. Ford's proposal also was outlined by Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi in a meeting with several Senate sponsors of the bill Monday afternoon as Congress reconvened for four weeks of hard work between the Democratic and Republican conventions.

Flu shots for 18 and older to be urged

Swine flu vaccine will be recommended for all persons 18 and older this fall, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced Monday. It was the first word that persons under 25 would be vaccinated. Field tests had indicated some of the experimental vaccines would not produce an adequate antibody response to fight the virus in younger adults. But Dr. Theodore Cooper, HEW Assistant Secretary for Health, planned to tell State Health officials this week that swine flu vaccine should be made available to young adults and should be combined with vaccine against the separate A-Victoria flu strain for older persons and the chronically ill.

Harrises, Hearst kept automatic weapons

Patricia Hearst and William and Emily Harris kept two automatic weapons fired in a Los Angeles shooting escapade up to the time the three were captured 16 months later, testimony showed Monday at the Harris trial. Prosecution witnesses said bullets found in a sporting goods store in May 1974, came from two carbines seized in September, 1975, in the San Francisco hideouts of Miss Hearst and the Harris couple. The Harrises are charged with kidnaping, robbery and assault stemming from the incident. Miss Hearst, undergoing psychiatric tests in San Diego, is scheduled to be tried at a later date on the same charges.

U.S. postpones final Beirut evacuation

The U.S. embassy Monday postponed its final evacuation of more than 400 Americans and foreigners from war-torn Beirut because of warnings the bus-and-car convoy might be endangered by fighting throughout Lebanon. The embassy, which based its decision on Palestinian guerrillas' "advice . . . that conditions would not be totally secure," said the evacuation might be attempted within a day or two. A spokesman said "other means of evacuation," such as the rescue of nearly 300 foreigners by U.S. Navy landing craft last June 20, were possible. "We'll just have to wait and see," the spokesman said. "If we can, we still prefer to go by land."

Thousands flee floods in Mexico

Thousands of Mexicans Monday fled the flooding Panuco and Tamesi rivers, swollen by more than 13 days of continuous heavy rains that have taken a heavy toll of life and property from the Pacific Ocean to the Gulf of Mexico. At least 14 residential districts were flooded by the waters of the Panuco, which rose more than 27 feet by Monday. The Tamesi was more than 24 feet above its normal level. Floodwaters had reached to within two blocks of the central square of the major gulf port of Tampico, about 214 miles northeast of Mexico City.

Cosmonauts begin growing plants

Two Soviet cosmonauts orbiting earth in a space laboratory for nearly two weeks have turned from rearing guppies to growing plants, the Tass news agency said Monday. Both projects were part of a series of experiments being conducted by Col. Boris Volynov and Lt. Col. Vitaly Zholobov to test the effects of outer space on living organisms. Tass said the cosmonauts had completed a study of guppy eggs and their development in a weightless condition. No details or results were given.

Carter 'absolutely' beatable: Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Confident of winning the GOP presidential nomination on the first ballot next month in Kansas City, President Ford said Monday that Jimmy Carter "absolutely" is beatable in November.

Ford said he can beat Carter on his record of "turning the economy around," ending the Vietnam War era and restoring "public confidence and trust" in the post-Nixon White House.

And he said he had not closed the door on anyone as a running mate — even suggesting he might go outside the party for a vice presidential candidate and telling reporters to "use your imagination" about what "elsewhere" meant.

On a brilliant sunny day, Ford held a news conference on the White House lawn and disclosed that the United States has evidence Libya has "stimulated terrorist activity"; expressed apprehension about a larger Communist role in the Italian government; and defended his own pardon of Richard M. Nixon as "in the national interest."

But with the Democratic convention just ended and the GOP nomination race entering the homestretch, politics was the main subject.

Asked if the Carter-Walter Mondale ticket could be beaten, Ford almost shouted his answer: "Absolutely!"

As for the running mate of his choice, Ford said he would not rule out Reagan, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and "a fine, fine array in the Republican Party and maybe elsewhere." When reporters seemed perplexed about what that meant, Ford replied "You heard me correctly."

Ford said his "best estimate" is that he now has 1,103 delegates of the 1,130 needed for victory. He repeatedly said he was "confident" he would win on the first ballot at the GOP convention opening Aug. 16 in Kansas City.

Ford also:

• Called the Carter-Mondale choice of last week's Democratic convention "a rather typical Democratic ticket."

• Said it would be up to "the American people, and not myself," to decide if the Nixon pardon was unwise.

Claim Leggett left classified papers unattended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Robert Leggett, D-Calif., in apparent seclusion Monday, refused comment on a report he had affairs with two congressional secretaries and carelessly handled classified documents.

The Washington Post reported that Leggett left classified information unattended in his car while having an extra-marital affair with Suzi Thomson, a secretary on the staff of Speaker Carl Albert.

Albert told reporters "I asked her about the claims and she said they were untrue. If they were true I would not keep her on the payroll, but I am not going to fire her on the basis of unsubstantiated allegations."

The Justice Department started an inquiry and the Post reported allegations that Leggett and Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N. Y., had taken bribes from South Korean officials to promote the cause of that country in Congress. Both have denied the charge.

Mrs. Thomson is a native of South Korea who became a citizen and is divorced. The Post said Leggett, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, on occasion took classified information home with him and left it in an unattended car while he visited Mrs. Thomson.

Albert said he would have no comment on Leggett and that he had no reason to be suspicious of Mrs. Thomson. "I had a check made of her by the FBI when she was hired, just as I did with other members of my staff. If there was any question at all that she compromised classified information or that she had an affair with Leggett I would fire her."

A spokesman for Leggett said he did not know the whereabouts of the 49-year-old lawmaker, whether he was in Washington or back in California.

The Post earlier said Leggett had an affair with a congressional secretary and she became pregnant. It said he bought her a house and that he forged the name of his wife, Barbara to a new mortgage.

Pirates kill 2 aboard crippled sloop

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — FBI and Coast Goard agents Monday sought clues to the mysterious murders of two Americans by four Spanish-speaking pirates who boarded their crippled sailing sloop off the coast of Colombia.

Two other Americans survived the early Sunday morning attack.

A Coast Guard spokesman identified the dead as Bobby Fisher and Wayne Daling, both of Miami. The survivors of the 54-foot sailing sloop "Feisty" were identified as Steve Johnson and Dave Kohler, also Miamians.

The sloop was abandoned but the bodies of the two Americans were recovered. Johnson and Kohler were picked up by the British oil tanker Esso Lincoln and were expected to arrive at the Caribbean island of Aruba on Wednesday.

(A port spokesman in Barranquilla, Colombia's principal city on the Caribbean, said Colombian authorities had no knowledge of the reported attack. Sources noted many unregistered craft, mainly belonging to smugglers and drug traffickers, ply the Caribbean coastal waters.)

The first report of the incident came in a "Mayday" message sent at 4 a.m. Sunday from the Feisty, anchored off the Colombian coast where the crew was fixing its auxiliary diesel engine.

"Need help. Bandits came aboard by rowboat. Killed two of the crew," the Coast Guard quoted the message as saying.

The survivors told the Coast Guard four pirates boarded the Feisty about 1 a.m. Sunday while the crew was asleep. They said Fisher and Daling were shot to death during a scuffle.

Baker said the attack "could be considered a case of piracy because it happened on the high seas." There was no indication the Feisty had been robbed, he said.

Baker said the Feisty was on a pleasure cruise from San Salvador to Aruba. It originally had three women aboard but they were dropped off at South Caicos in the British West Indies.

Soviet art exchange talks joined by Jackie Onassis

Noise exemption bill is vetoed

Gov. Daniel Walker Monday vetoed a bill which would have exempted auto racetracks, sporting events and grain elevators in small communities from the state's noise pollution regulations. Walker said the bill is not needed because an environmental law enacted last year established a procedure for evaluating the economic impact of environmental regulations, including noise pollution standards.

"We have a new law that allows for exceptions when economic hardship can be shown with facts. That is the procedure that should be followed," Walker said in his veto message. Walker said the Institute for Environmental Quality is conducting economic impact studies of noise standards for both grain elevators and motor racing events.

Fraud trial jury picked

Jury selection for the trial of three banking officials and an Ogden, Ill., businessman was completed Monday in U.S. district court. All are charged in a conspiracy to defraud the Small Business Administration in the granting of a $35,000 loan in 1970 to Thomas Logan, 47, owner of the Logan Agricultural Center, Ogden. Named in the indictment are Logan, Ralph Sadler, 69, president of the First National Bank of Ogden, James Meyers, 57, executive vice president of the Ogden bank, and Arthur Murray, 44, president of the Citizens State Bank of Milford.

The indictment charged that Logan was indebted to both banks at the time that the business administration granted him a loan, and that he deliberately defaulted on the administration loan, forcing the government group to reimburse the Ogden and Milford Banks. He used the loan money to pay off debts rather than for business purposes, the government charged. Charges include obstructing the lawful function of the administration and diverting federal money for personal use.

New trial for road firms

U.S. District Court Judge Harlington Wood Jr. Monday ordered a new trial for two Southern Illinois road contracting executives and their firms. The new trial on 1974 bid rigging charges was ordered after it was learned that a juror took at least one newspaper clipping into jury deliberations. Wood ordered a new trial for defendants E.T. Simmonds Construction Co., Carbondale, and the company president, Eugene T. Simmonds, and J.D. Barter Construction Co. Inc., Harrisburg, and its president, H.H. Barter. The defendants were found guilty in October, 1974, of collusive bidding on three jobs in a state bid letting held in Springfield in June, 1971.

Book thefts taking big toll: librarians

The American Library Assn. estimates that book thefts cost the taxpayer more than $250 million per year, and future doctors and lawyers were fingered Monday as some of the worst offenders. "Probably the worst class of offenders is student doctors and student lawyers," said Graham Gurr, 39, manager of the Library Systems branch of the 3M Co. "There's such competitive play that one of the tricks they use is to steal the book so that nobody else can get it."

Gurr attended the 1,000th installation of 3M's Tattle-Tape book theft detection system Monday at the Carter Woodson Regional Library, the second largest of Chicago's public libraries. The system involves the insertion of magnetism-sensitive tapes into the library books. People leaving the library with books that are not properly checked out set off an alarm and lock the check-out gate. Gurr said the thefts are simple at public libraries. He said one library ordered a system shortly after an entire set of encyclopedias was stolen within 24 hours of purchase. Systems also have been installed at the Naval War College in Rhode Island and in at least one police academy which was not identified.

53 to appear in court Aug. 24

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Howard Miller Monday set Aug. 24 for the arraignments of 53 persons charged in connection with the violence that erupted during Saturday's open housing march by blacks into Marquette Park. Assistant State's Attorney Frances Norek said 33 defendants face a city charge of disorderly conduct. The remaining 20 are charged with disorderly conduct and a state charge of mob action, she said.

Skokie man, 23, dies in fall

Charles C. Stein, 23, Skokie, plunged to his death from the 19th floor of the 38-story Pittsfield Building in the Loop, landing on a sixth-floor roof of the building. Police Commander Joseph DiLeonardi said Stein had been staying at a halfway house in Chicago and went to the Pittsfield Building for an appointment with a psychiatrist. He jumped from a washroom window on the 19th floor, DiLeonardi said.

Reward in railroad man's death

A $5,000 reward was offered by the Grand Trunk Western R.R. Monday for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who fatally injured railroad fireman Kenneth J. Podlewski July 13. Podlewski, 27, Battle Creek, Mich., was killed when a bottle thrown through a locomotive window struck him, causing head, neck and eye injuries. He died about four hours after the bottle crashed through the window when the train was passing through the city's far South Side. John H. Burdakin, president of Grand Trunk, urged persons with information about the incident to call either 800-521-3914 or 800-521-3915 or write to the railroad in care of GTW Railroad Police, 3501 W. 51st ST., Chicago, Ill., 60632.

Six arrested on heroin charge

Six men suspected of smuggling $12 million in heroin each month into Chicago have been arrested on charges of possessing 17.3 pounds of heroin valued at more than $10 million, authorities said Monday. Vernon D. Meyer, regional director of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, announced the arrests of Oscar Mancillas, 26, Chicago, identified as the leader; Saul Aveytia, 41, and Antonio Davalos, 44, both of El Paso, Tex., and Charles A. Lowry, 35, Jose Luis Fernandez, 24, and Jose America Rodriguez, 29, all of Chicago.

Four of the men were arrested Sunday in a Joliet motel and 12.3 pounds of heroin were found hidden in a tire of a car in the parking lot, Meyer said. Fernandez and Rodriquez were arrested last Tuesday in Chicago; Fernandez allegedly with five pounds of heroin in his possession, Rodriquez with a scale. Fernandez was released on $100,000 bond and Rodriguez on $4,500.

$177 million budget OKd by RTA

by LYNN ASINOF

The Regional Transportation Authority Monday approved its controversial 1976-77 budget for $177 million, but legal technicalities will prevent the agency from spending its funds for up to six weeks.

The courts first must rule on the legality of the budget because its passage was delayed for nearly three weeks by four suburban directors who were demanding the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. By law, the budget had to be approved by June 30.

The RTA Board called an immediate court test in the state courts to test the validity of the budget.

Passage of the budget ended the threat of a region wide mass transportation crisis that developed when the suburban directors blocked budget passage. That action prevented disbursement of needed funds to suburban bus lines, comuter rail roads and the Chicago Transit Authority.

MONDAY'S BOARD action, however, may come too late for the North Suburban Mass Transit District, which says it will close its doors Friday unless it can get a bank loan because it has no operating funds.

NORTRAN officials said they need $215,000 to operate their bus lines for the next four weeks in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Mount Prospect and Wheeling.

A court decision on the RTA budget is not expected for two to six weeks.

Passage of the budget Monday was based on an agreement made between city and suburban RTA directors early last week, allowing Pikarsky to continue as chairman, but restricting his powers by the appointment of a chief operating officer.

CTA OFFICIALS said the budget approved Monday will leave the CTA in an "extremely critical financial crisis."

As part of the compromise agreement, the RTA Board cut $29 million from the CTA funding request. CTA Gen. Mgr. George Krambles said without the funding the CTA will be forced to raise fares and cut service.

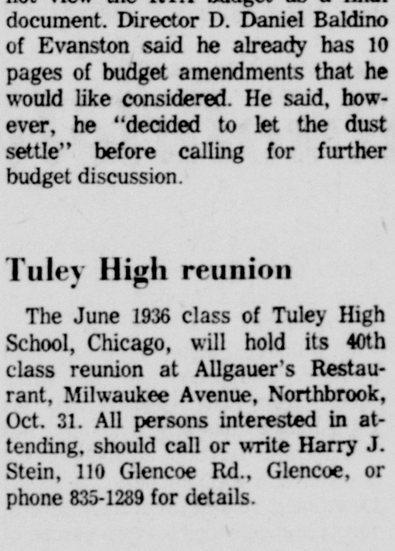

RTA Board members said they do not view the RTA budget as a final document. Director D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston said he already has 10 pages of budget amendments that he would like considered. He said, however, he "decided to let the dust settle" before calling for further budget discussion.

Old Wilke Rd. project delayed till 1977

by DAVE GALANTI

A $400,000 repaving and improvement project for Old Wilke Road between Algonquin and Central roads probably will not start until next year.

James J. Muldowney, Rolling Meadows city engineer, said the long-delayed project is now in the hands of City Atty. Donald M. Rose, who is preparing "the necessary ordinances" before an agreement on financing the project could be made between the city and Arlington Heights.

Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights border Wilke on the west and east, respectively. The cost of the project will be shared between the two municipalities.

ROSE SAID he is finishing documents to allow Arlington Heights to annex a corner piece of property at Wilke and Algonquin roads. The land currently is not a part of either community, and annexation to Arlington Heights is needed before a proposed special assessment district can be set up to pay for the village's share of the cost.

He added the corner land, which is the site of a Marathon gasoline station, could have been annexed to either community. The decision to annex the land to Arlington Heights was based on the land's location on the east side of Wilke Road to square off the boundaries between the two communities.

Rose said he hoped to meet with Arlington Heights officials "within the next 30 days" to discuss final plans for the improvement work. He said it was his understanding that Arlington Heights had not yet decided whether to use a special assessment process to fund its share of the project.

Rolling Meadows plans to pay for its estimated $134,808 share of the cost with state motor fuel tax money.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS property owners whose land adjoins Old Wilke Road where the improvements are planned will likely pay for the village's estimated $202,000 share of the cost by special assessment.

Muldowney said the delays and the normal time period involved in obtaining a special assessment would probably hold back the start of paving until next spring. He said that although needed drainage work could be done in the winter, paving would have to be done in the next three months or be put off until next spring.

Motorists have complained to officials of both communities about the poor condition of the road. The commitment to repair Old Wilke Road came as part of a county project to extend Wilke Road from Central Road south to Golf Road.

The extension, New Wilke Road, was built one block east of the existing Old Wilke Road.

Part of the agreement with the county called for the county to abandon Old Wilke Road after the project was completed, with the two communities sharing in the cost of future repairs to the road.

Ridership averages 158 daily

Bus service qualifies for funding

Ridership on the new commuter bus service between Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights is averaging more than the 158 daily passengers needed to qualify it for continued full funding from the Regional Transportation Authority.

The number of passengers riding the eight daily bus routes between Buffalo Grove and the Chicago and North Western Ry. station in Arlington Heights has increased steadily since the service started June 28.

Ridership averaged 177 last week compared to 161 during the second week of the service and 122 during the first week.

The high ridership has virtually assured continuation of full funding for the bus route, Edward Bailey, RTA project director, said.

WHEN THE RTA funding was approved for the service in May, the agency agreed to full funding for the first six months. The service had to prove itself by attracting 1.7 passengers per mile for full funding to continue after the trial period.

RTA officials have said the new RTA budget approved Monday provides for continuation of full funding for the bus service even if the passenger quota is not met.

Figures show the ridership hit a peak July 13 and July 20 with 197 passengers each day. It has not gone below 154 since the first week of operation.

"The service is doing very well, and we do expect to maintain and improve these figures," Bailey said.

ROBERT BOURNE, operations assistant for the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN) which runs the service, said he does not anticipate a significant decrease in ridership when the 40-cent fares are imposed Aug. 2. Fares are free until then.

He said any decrease will be offset by an increase in ridership as more people become aware of the service and as the summer vacation season ends. He said bus ridership generally drops 10 per cent during the summer.

Bourne said the busiest bus is the 5:58 p.m. out of the Arlington Heights train station. He said a new 51-passenger bus has been assigned to replace the 45-passenger bus originally making that run, and that people are still standing.

Officials fear NORTRAN folding

by LYNN ASINOF

Officials of the North Suburban Mass Transit District say they will have to close their doors Friday unless new operating funds are found.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTRAN executive director, said, Monday he had expected passage of the Regional Transportation Authority budget to provide the needed operating funds.

RTA officials, however, say they cannot spend any funds until the courts rule on the legality of the budget. This may take up to six weeks, but during the interim RTA officials said they will help NORTRAN secure a bank loan to keep the suburban buses rolling.

RTA General Counsel Jeremiah Marsh said the RTA could not guarantee any bank that NORTRAN would receive funds until the Illinois Supreme Court rules on the validity of the budget.

PASSAGE OF THE RTA budget was delayed for nearly three weeks by four suburban directors who were demanding the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. By law, the budget had to be passed by June 30.

The RTA Board called for a suit to be filed in the state courts immediately to test the budget's validity.

Passage of the budget ended the threat of a regionwide mass transportation crisis that developed when suburban directors blocked budget passage. This prevented the disbursement of needed funds to suburban bus lines, commuter railroads and the Chicago Transit Authority.

But NORTRAN officials — who say they need the money quickly — said they do not expect RTA funds to be available in time for them to continue operations past Friday.

"AS LONG AS the validity of the RTA budget is in doubt, the NORTRAN Board of Trustees does not have alternative sources of funding and cannot continue to incur liabilities and debts on behalf of the district," said NORTRAN Chairman Bart T. Murphy in a statement to the RTA board.

NORTRAN officials said they need $215,000 to operate their bus lines for the next four weeks in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and a small area of Mount Prospect near Des Plaines.

A court decision on the RTA budget is not expected for two to six weeks. An emergency NORTRAN meeting is scheduled Wednesday.

Much of the NORTRAN service is in Des Plaines, where almost every local RTA route extends and where the bulk of Northwest suburban ridership exists.

The limited service in Wheeling, involving trips from that village to the Loop, and the Buffalo Grove service, which began only several weeks ago, both appear to be in jeopardy because of the Friday deadline.

The Buffalo Grove NORTRAN route, which already has nearly 200 riders daily, is a commuter feeder line along Arlington Heights Road serving commuters using the downtown Arlington Heights commuter station.

Insurance perils flu shot program

ticipate in the nationwide vaccination program, Weinand said.

Arlington Heights has been asked to conduct the community clinic as one of about 100 clinics to be operated in suburban Cook County. More than 200 workers will be needed for the clinic, to be held at the activity center at St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Weinand said.

The swine flu inoculation program is in jeopardy in some areas because of the question of who would be liable if any malpractice suits are filed in connection with the vaccinations.

Weinand said the village's insurance agency has been asked to investigate the cost of providing additional liability insurance for the volunteer workers, but no estimate has been received. Indications are that such insurance would be prohibitively expensive, he said.

Some health authorities believe that legal protection will be provided by having consent forms signed by all persons who are inoculated, Weinand said.

7-year-old girl hurt in car-bike accident

A 7-year-old Arlington Heights bicyclist received minor injuries when she was struck by a car at Palatine Road and Walnut Avenue Saturday night, police reported.

Police said Jacqueline M. McElroy, of 501 W. Palatine Rd., suffered multiple bruises after she rode her bicycle off a sidewalk and into the path of a car driven by John L. Ailport, 40, of 1141 N. Chestnut Ave., Arlington Heights, at 8:50 p.m. Saturday.

Arlington Heights paramedics transported Miss McElroy to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where she was reported in good condition Monday.

Police did not charge Ailport in the accident.

Ventriloquist plans library performance

Ventriloquist Debbi Moore will appear Saturday at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library.

The program, featuring Miss Moore and her wooden-headed friend, Dodi, will be at 10:30 a.m. in the Dunton Room of the library. Admission is free and open to children 6 years of age and older.

The show is sponsored by the library's children's department.

7 apply for Dist. 21 Board slot

Seven persons have applied for the vacant seat on the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education.

The board will interview the candidates Wednesday and appoint the new member at Thursday's board meeting.

The interviews will be open to the public and will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the district administration center, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Applicants for the position are Herb Stein, 915 E. Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights; Daniel Kafcas, 1103 S. Miller Ln., Buffalo Grove; Winfield Boyer, 1801 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, and Don McGlothlin, 1047 S. Carol Ave., Wheeling.

Also submitting their names are Herbert Kessel, 3127 N. Wilshire, Arlington Heights; Frances R. Monte, 25 Schoenbeck Rd., Wheeling; and James Gallagher, 1008 Woodland Dr., Wheeling.

Stein, Kafcas and Gallagher were members of the recent citizens committee studying Dist. 21's finances. Stein, 48, is the dean of the College of Engineering at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle campus and Kafcas, 43, is a training specialist for United Airlines.

GALLAGHER, 25, a systems programmer, was defeated in April in his first bid for the Dist. 21 Board.

McGlothlin, 63, is a teacher in Chicago. He was defeated in earlier bids for the school boards in Dist. 21 and High Scool Dist. 214.

Kessel, 33, an attorney, appeared before the Dist. 21 General Caucus in February but did not enter the April election after the caucus failed to endorse him.

Mrs. Monte, 33, is a substitute teacher in Chicago.

Boyer, 35, is an advertising salesman for Teacher Magazine.

Officials to mull public aid criteria

Criteria for giving persons general assistance in Wheeling Township will be discussed at 8 p.m. today by township auditors.

The township's social service department now uses guidelines formulated by the Illinois State Dept. of Public Aid.

"But we thought we should have a formal policy of our own, written down in black and white," Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus said.

The township now serves 41 persons through its general assistance fund, budgeted at $178,050 this year.

General assistance includes the township's subsidizing persons both in their homes and in institutions. This year's budget calls for the township to spend as much as $75,000 to buy food and as much as $35,000 to supplement rent payments.

The budget allows the township to spend as much as $22,500 in supplementing persons' medical care expenses in county, private and convalescent homes and facilities.

Draut taken to Cook County Jail

Timothy Draut, the 23-year-old Arlington Heights man charged with accidentally running down Patrolman Alan J. Vargo Sunday, appeared in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court Monday but failed to have his bond reduced from $200,000.

Draut must post 10 per cent of his bond, or $20,000, to free himself. He is charged with reckless homicide, driving while intoxicated, failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, driving too fast for conditions, improper lane usage and disobeying a police officer.

Draut, of 746 N. Belmont Ave., appeared in court Monday with his mother and his attorney. The judge set Draut's court date for Aug. 6, and he was ordered transported by Cook County Sheriff's police to Cook County Jail, Chicago, to await trial.

Meeting canceled; Vargo's death cited

The Arlington Heights Village Board meeting scheduled for Monday night was canceled because of the death of Arlington Heights Patrolman Alan J. Vargo. The board's next regular meeting will be Aug. 2.

Vargo, 24, died Sunday from injuries he suffered when struck by a car while directing traffic around the scene of an accident at Arlington Heights Road and Olive Street.

Furnace dilemma provides lesson

The Elk Grove Village furnace controversy, in which thousands of residents waited with uncertainty to learn the severity of building code and furnace defects in their homes, finally appears to be resolved.

It has been two years since The Herald first reported the potential danger of furnaces in Centex Homes Corp. homes in Elk Grove Village. And as quickly as the controversy developed, similarly the denials and heated countercharges permeated the issue.

Soon discussions became overly emotional. The building commissioner said these faulty furnaces jeopardized the lives of the residents living in 3,000 Centex homes. Village President Charles Zettek said nonsense.

The community was outraged. Who was to blame, and who should be responsible for solving the problem? Today there are answers to those questions.

Centex Homes Corp. has agreed to pay for modifications to furances and hot water heaters in 1,136 Elk Grove Village homes. Fire resistant materials will be installed in 724 homes and new venting equipment in 303. There will be no charge to homeowners.

Although two years of controversy and months of negotiations have brought about a satisfactory solution, we believe the background of the issue is significant.

Elk Grove Village was one of several Northwest suburban communities which became major municipalities because of subdivision housing developments. The problems associated with such rapid growth undoubtedly were not envisioned when plans were unfolding on the drawing boards at village hall.

But the days of small communities overwhelmed by such projects are behind us. And today our communities should be prepared for the resurgence in the housing market as major developments again are sprouting in every corner of the Northwest suburbs after several years of relative inactivity.

If there is a lesson in the Elk Grove furnace situation, it is that village officials must use foresight in planning for major housing developments by ensuring that building departments are adequately staffed to scrutinize them. The Elk Grove Village problem should be a reminder to other municipal officials of the importance of stringent control of construction projects.

Walker promise to disclose contributors unmet

A promise made is a promise half kept — or so it seems with an old promise of Gov. Daniel Walker to release the names of campaign contributors.

It was four months ago that Walker, in the spirit of honesty in government, promised to reveal who donated money to his 1972 primary campaign. The promise was not a new one. Walker has talked about disclosing names and amounts since he put on his hiking boots to walk the state during his 1972 campaign.

Two incomplete lists of contributors were released in March shortly before the primary, and the public was led to believe the remaining names would be forthcoming.

But Walker has come up with repeated excuses for why the lists are not available. First he refused to disclose his contributors because he feared there would be reprisals for those who aided him in his effort to beat the Daley machine.

When he reversed this position and released the partial lists, Walker said the remaining names would be handed out after the primary when his staff members did not have to put all their time into the campaign.

The primary is long over, there are no new elections for the Walker people to work on, and yet there is no list. There have been no new excuses — only silence from the Walker camp.

Walker has sought an image of the honest non-politician, true to his word, a man the people can trust. Glossing over important election promises won't enhance that reputation.

Convention delegates have a free ride?

The Democratic National Convention was held in quasi-bankrupt New York City this week, a fitting location for the party dominated by reckless public spenders in recent decades. However, this time around the thousands of delegates were the beneficiaries of Big Apple's infamous handouts.

For example, the city provided free bus service for delegates to all 50 convention hotels. Late arrivals who traveled by taxi found city inspectors stationed at airports and hotels to insure proper fares. In addition, delegates and officials rode on the bus and subway system during the week for free. Kits containing complimentary gifts and information were placed in each hotel room. City consumer officials monitored retail outlets to prevent price ripoffs for the guests. Even the prostitutes were asked to clean up and behave during convention time.

THE COST for all of this? Three million dollars of city funds plus a $2.6 million grant to cover security measures at Madison Square Garden. It should be noted that federal funds will cover the costs of the convention itself. All of this comes at a time when the city has just received another $500 million loan from the secretary of the treasury.

The irony is that these delegates were called upon to make statements on public policy, the chief concern should have been inflation. But how can the delegates understand the need for action if they were insulated by the city from the economic pressures which we feel every day? How credible is Jimmy Carter, the champion of reform, if he allows such practices to continue?

The whole sorry situation is consistent with past actions but not with what voters in 1976 expect of our political process. Why is New York City, with Washington close behind, in a financial mess? Don't ask a local delegate to the Democratic Convention, he's having a good time at our expense and doesn't feel a thing.

Private pools vs. sprinkling

Can Al Sanders take some friendly little criticism?

First, it doesn't take an expert to observe the regeneration of private pool water on weekends. The bad water goes out, the good water goes in. In the springtime the whole thing is dumped and tap water refills the pool. Thousands of gallons of water are used.

Second, I bought my home in a nice green-type residential neighborhood. I'm proud of what I worked for. I enjoy my property in private appreciation.

Third, it's all right if you want to fine homeowners $25 for sprinkling. But let's be fair about it. Private pools are a luxury and use 10 times more water than I do sprinkling. How is it more important to fill a swimming pool than to sprinkle a lawn?

When I turn my faucet on for a drink of water, I think of you, Al Sanders and all the private pool owners getting a free ride.

Reagan's record 'is not in line with his platform'

by RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON — (NEA) We have a habit in the United States of judging man by what he says — almost ignoring what he does.

If he says what we like to hear, we forgive a mwn whose actions do violence to our beliefs. If he says what we don't like to hear, he cannot please us whatever he does.

Let us then, in assessing Ronald Reagan, ignore what he says, what he promises and how he postures.

And look at what he did as governor.

He castigated the state universities — and doubled the budgets for higher education. He verbally slashed right and left and to the quick on health programs and doubled or tripled their budgets, depending on your mathematics.

He railed against government spending and higher taxes, and increased the state budget to 2.5 times its level when he came to office. On balance, he boosted taxes proportionately.

HE TALKED about the California state legislature in the harshest terms but personally negotiated privately at greater length with legislative leaders than any previous governor. He introduced more compromise bills and made more legislative compromises on major as well as minor points — perhaps more than any California executive within memory.

In this, Reagan was like a first-rate union negotiator, castigating adversary in public but dealing issue by issue pragmatically with the verve of an old-fashioned horse trader. Here he had the respect of some of his roughest opponents.

He lashed out at the welfare system — and ended up agreeing to quite liberal benefits and greatly increased spending. His great achievement here, however, was in markedly reducing the number of chiselers on the rolls.

His words have given him a reputation favoring business against the small consumer. But he sponsored what is perhaps the toughest water pollution control law in the United States, and stepped up regulation of the auto repair, home insurance, real estate and retail businesses and of doctors and dentists.

In cooperation with the legislature, he reduced the oil depletion allowance, increased income taxes from 7 to 11 per cent for the top bracket, took more low-income families off the tax rolls, stiffened the capital gains tax, increased inheritance tax rates and gave renters tax credits. He supported a bill giving mental patients the right to refuse shock treatments.

LIKE JIMMY Carter, Reagan brought in a considerable group of bright young men when he moved into the governorship. As in the Carter administration, there was no hint of financial hanky-panky. And Reagan's appointments, like Carter's, were regarded as above average.

But Reagan's style as governor was worlds apart from Carter's. The latter came to work early, stayed late, insisted on knowing and analyzing every detail of every operation, and in the end, Carter's way prevailed.

Reagan as governor, worked from 9 to 5. He delegated work, was interested only in overall policies, left his cabinet officers and assistants to develop and manage his and their programs with virtually free hands. Details were of little interest.

Like Carter and most other politicians, Reagan is very sensitive to criticism from his opponents. But it's reported he'll take straight, highly critical talk in private from his friends, not a common trait among governors or presidents.

A sleeper in party rules?

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This observer usually is the last to notice those "little noticed but highly significant" items that are the stock and trade of punditry. But this time we've got one of those prize sleepers by the ear.

To wit: Section 12 of the report of the Committee On Rules of the 1976 Democratic national convention adopted with not much argument last week in Madison Square Garden.

The section adds nine new words to Article X of the Democratic Charter. The practical effect of these words could be to revive the party's famous quota system feud, a controversy that for several years had Democrats spending more energy arguing with each other than campaigning against the Republicans.

The background is as follows: Through 1968, the delegates chosen for Democratic national conventions were mostly white, middle-aged male Anglo-Saxons.

PARTY REFORMERS managed to get the rules changed for 1972 to require state parties to give delegate seats to "traditionally under-represented" groups. Many states did this by using census data to determine what percentage of seats should go to women, blacks and young people. This method of distributing delegate seats became known as "quotas," and after the Democrats absorbed a monumental whipping, took at least part of the rap for the party's troubles.

After 1972, the party exorcised "quotas" and substituted "affirmative action." This required state parties to conduct active recruiting campaigns for women, black and youth delegates, but imposed no tests of numbers.

This seemed to satisfy everyone until the returns came in from delegate selection for the 1976 national convention. Women, who make up more than half of the population, got only 34 per cent of the delegates, down 4 per cent from 1972. Blacks dropped from 15 to 11 per cent, youths from 21 to 14 per cent.

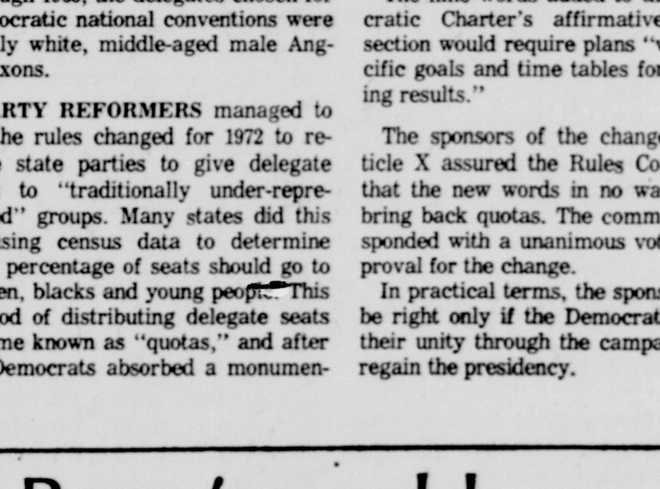

Led by the blacks, the "traditionally under-represented groups" came back for redress. They knew that quotas, now specifically banned in party law, could not be reinstated. So they went for changes in affirmative action.

The nine words added to the Democratic Charter's affirmative action section would require plans "with specific goals and time tables for achieving results."

The sponsors of the change in Article X assured the Rules Committee that the new words in no way would bring back quotas. The committee responded with a unanimous vote of approval for the change.

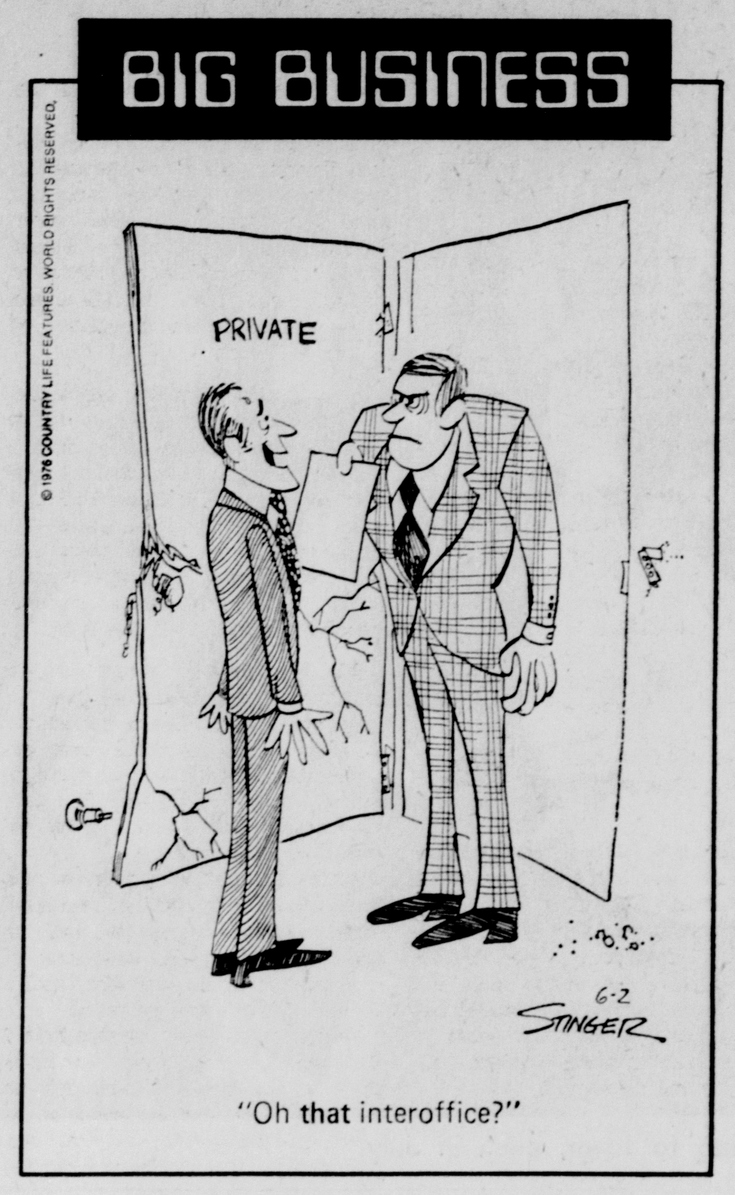

In practical terms, the sponsors will be right only if the Democrats retain their unity through the campaign and regain the presidency.

"Oh that interoffice?"

Auto industry talks open on optimistic note

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp. began auto industry contract negotiations Monday with optimistic statements that an economy-crippling strike can be avoided for the first time in almost a decade.

Connracts covering 680,000 auto workers at GM, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors expire at midnight Sept 14. Both GM and UAW negotiators said there do not appear to be any "mandated issues" that would lead inevitably to a strike.

Despite the most conciliatory talk in recent years, GM bargainers drew the line on at least one issue — improved benefits for current retired employes. George B. Morris Jr., GM vice president for industrial relations, said there was no way around an agreement that prevents improvements until 1979.

Morris opened the negotiations by shaking hands with Leonard Woodcock, the 65-year-old UAW president who is leading his last set of contract talks before retiring, possibly into a post in a Jimmy Carter administration should the Democratic nominee win the presidency.

'Support grows for auto air bags'

by LEA TONKIN

Strong consumer and industry support is turning the tide in favor of air bag automobile crash protection systems, said national transportation safety expert Albert Kelley at a press conference Monday in Chicago.

If Kelley and other air bag boosters have their way, consumers will buy new cars equipped with mandatory passive-restraint systems, possibly by 1980.

Kelley pointed to what he called the "most significant development in recent days" in support of the life-saving systems. The Motor Vehicle Safety Advisory Council, appointed by the president, voted July 15 to urge U.S. Transportation Sec. William Coleman's approval of automatic crash protection systems.

THE STAKES are high in Coleman's decision, expected by year's end. Kelley estimates 9,000 to 19,000 lives a year could be saved if air bag protection were offered to all front seat auto passengers.

Coleman will chair an Aug. 3 Washington, D.C. hearing on the long-standing issue. The Dept. of Transportation has studied passive-restraint rule making for eight years. The required air bag systems have been consistently opposed by the U.S. auto industry.

Allstate Insurance Co., Northbrook, a major air bag promoter, will present the latest results of its own testing program at the Aug. 3 hearing. The tests of 602 air bag-equipped cars covered five model years and five auto makes.

"We feel strongly that passive restraints should be required equipment on all cars by the 1980 model year at the latest," said Allstate Chairman Archie R. Boe. "Effective passive-restraint systems such as the air bag have demonstrated their life-saving capabilities repeatedly; the DOT's own figures show they could save 8,900 lives and 500,000 serious injuries each year. The lack of an effective passive-restraint standard has cost the nation thousands of lives, millions of injuries, billions of dollars and substantially higher auto insurance rates. It is a cost we can no longer afford."

At the Monday press briefing, Kelley cautioned that consumer support for air bags should not be interpreted as resistance to safety belts. Belt-use levels in the U.S. are "tragically low," but consumers are advised to use them as the best available crash protection, he said.

Films of auto crash test results were shown at the Monday meeting, sponsored by the American Mutual Insurance Alliance, Chicago, and the National Assn. of Independent Insurers, Des Plaines.

Business briefs

Westinghouse settles strike

Westinghouse Electric Corp. settled with its 12,500 nonstriking salaried employes and 2,160 striking electric workers Monday. But the first nationwide strike against the company in 20 years kept 90 of the firm's 123 plants shut down. Labor Sec. W. J. Usery was in Pittsburgh trying to help reach a settlement in the fast-growing Westinghouse walkout. The strike expanded over the weekend when 28,000 members of the International Electrical Workers Union and the United Electrical Workers joined 13,000 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in the walkout. Meanwhile, hospital workers who had been on strike for 11 days at 57 hospitals and nursing homes in New York City came back to work in full force. But hospital management threatened cutbacks or layoffs to offset the expected pay raises for the 40,000 employes.

Gold price drops another $4.50

The price of gold plunged $4.50 to $113.75 an ounce during trading Monday, almost $9.00 lower than it brought at last Wednesday's International Monetary Fund gold auction. Gold has dropped 42 per cent in price since it reached a high of around $200 an ounce in December 1974.

AFL-CIO endorses Carter

The AFL-CIO officially endorsed Jimmy Carter for President and George Meany, president of the federation, promised the organization's "all out support" for the Democratic nominee. "I think he's a very warm human being. I think he wants to change the economy. His overall goal is our overall goal, to put America back to work," Meany told reporters.

Dow Jones closes down for third straight day

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Stock Market, struggling most of the day, suffered its third consecutive setback Monday in reaction to a disappointing near-term outlook for housing and uncertainty about interest rates.

Analysts said the market appeared to weaken during the afternoon after the Commerce Department reported that although housing starts rose 4.3 per cent in June, building permits fell 3.1 per cent.

THE DOW JONES industrial average, which see-sawed in a narrow range most of the day, lost 2.38 points to 990.83. The closely watched average, which represents a quarter of the value of all NYSE stocks, lost 4.25 points Friday.

In late selling, the NYSE common stock index lost 0.19 to 55.75 and the average price of an NYSE common share fell 12 cents. Declines edged advances, 775 to 629, among the 1,858 issues crossing the tape. There were 454 unchanged issues, reflecting investor uncertainty.

Volume totaled 18,200,000 shares, down from the 20,450,000 traded Friday.

Prices closed sharply lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Annex share decreased by 10 cents. Volume totaled 2,320,000 shares, compared with 1,940,000 traded Friday.

You'd better not pout...

...because Santa Claus can come to town, even in July.

Handicapped kids receive special visit

It was Christmas in July for some lucky five- to 13-year-old members of the Northwest Special Recreation District as Santa Claus paid them a special summer visit Friday.

Even though he was about six months early, (or is that six months late,) Santa didn't forget his sack, passing out presents to the youngsters and asking them what they wanted for Christmas.

The children entertained by Santa include handicapped children from throughout the Northwest suburbs. The event was held in the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Dr.

Water allocation topic of meeting

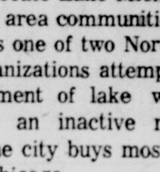

The Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine Water Commission, known as DAMP, will confer with state officials Wednesday over a controversial set of rules that will be used to allocate Lake Michigan water to Chicago area communities.

DAMP is one of two Northwest suburban organizations attempting to get an assignment of lake water. Des Plaines is an inactive member in DAMP. The city buys most of its water from Chicago.

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation's division of water resources is holding hearings on the lake water requests as well as a set of proposed rules governing how the allocations are to be made.

The Wednesday meeting with state officials is set for 1:30 p.m. at the Marina City office building, 300 N. State St., Chicago.

In a jam? Don't come crying to us.

"Write yourself a loan!"

Emergencies do happen. And sometimes your troubles are bigger than your bank balance.
Wouldn't it be nice to write a check for the amount you need, and the bank would cover the darn thing for you?
Best of all, what if you could pay it back in easy monthly installments, later on?
Well, that's exactly what "Check-Loan" lets credit-worthy folks do.
Wherever you are, whenever the need arises—nights, days or weekends—you can write yourself a loan by writing a check.
If you qualify, we'll cover your "Check-Loan" check out of a line of credit established after you apply for "Check-Loan."
Then you can pay us back later . . . either all at once, or in monthly installments.
It's revolving credit, too. Each time you pay some back, you have that amount to use all over again.
Best of all, "Check-Loan" is totally free until the day you have to use it!
And you only pay interest during the months when you actually owe us something.
To see if you qualify, ask about "Check-Loan" right now.
You never know when it might save your life. Or at least your vacation.

Just being there isn't enough.

The look of fall

If you want to be trendy, it's layered and tailored

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

The fashion route Seventh Avenue has mapped out for fall '76 goes in basically three directions:

(1) layered, in a country manner,

(2) man-tailored,

(3) and so far removed from reality your friends and relatives will exchange concerned looks about you when you don the creations.

First, on the morning you decide you want a "shall we lunch at the inn?" look, plan on getting up an hour earlier. There's a lot to get into.

Start with a cowl-neck sweater. Not a conservative, mildly cowled neck, mind you — a COWL neck.

Now, before you tuck the sweater inside a wrapped tartan kilt or a straight or dirndl plaid skirt, button a shirt over it.

NEXT COMES A weskit, or perhaps a tabard or tunic, even a bolero in a matching plaid or one that's complementary.

Before we continue, if you've a taste for luxury, you'll be pleased to know the sweater probably will be cashmere, the shirt silk and the vest or tabard suede. (Colors include lots of soft neutrals as well as brights.)

All right, now you've got on the sweater, shirt, skirt, vest . . . just a second. If you don't want to wear a skirt, you can just as well pull on a pair of knickers. That's right, knickers, or jodphurs, or a pair of gaucho pants.

Don't worry about your hose, no matter what your bottom choice is. Kneesocks are on the march, hand in hand, so to speak, with flats, short boots and those stacked walking shoes with the little fringed tongue.

Okay, we had on the sweater, shirt, skirt or pants, and the vest, so we're ready for the blazer, the hunting or hacking jacket.

Where are you going? You're not ready to leave just yet.

Take the cowl neck sweater and slip the neckline up over your head like a hood. (From the back, of course. If you pull it up from the front, you won't be able to see.) On top of that, you're going to plant a little beret or peaked sporting cap.

IF YOU LIKE, you can put the beret or cap on first and then pull the sweater up over it. It doesn't matter which; the important thing is to achieve a sheltered, turtle appearance.

There's just one more item to go and then you're set.

Over all these plateaus and layers of material, you are now going to fling a blanket, solid or plaid, possibly fringed. If it has a hood, and some do, then you may have to forego the beret lest your head become too heavy. But you can get a note from your doctor explaining the deletion.

There are, of course, other outwear options: ponchos, duffel coats, lumberjackets and shawls. Almost all are hooded, except, of course, the shawls.

In any case, if it's still daylight, toss a scarf around what's left of your neck and have a friend propel you to the door.

Is it classic, no-nonsense tailoring you'll be wanting the next day? Well, sleep a little later; it won't require as much work.

PICK A PAIR of waist-pleated trousers or a straight skirt, pinstriped, tweed or solid, with matching vest or argyle sweater-vest and shrug a single or double breasted blazer on top.

Put a flower in your lapel, an ascot that matches your shirt around your neck, or one of your husband's ties, and then beat the guy next door to a seat on the bus. If you want to make sure he doesn't give you any trouble, pull an Al Capone hat over your eyes and hang a long, slim coat on your shoulders and watch the waves part for you.

Now we come to what Seventh Avenue refers to as fantasy dressing. Actually, it's more a case of couturiers stepping onto the boards trod by costume designers.

How about going to the PTA meeting in a medieval monk's outfit? Long black skirt, blouse and tabard, a flat brimmed hat with knitted covering for the throat, and a long-chained cross around your neck. You'll have to carry a candle as you go — at least that's what the models we saw did — so make some accommodation for dripping wax.

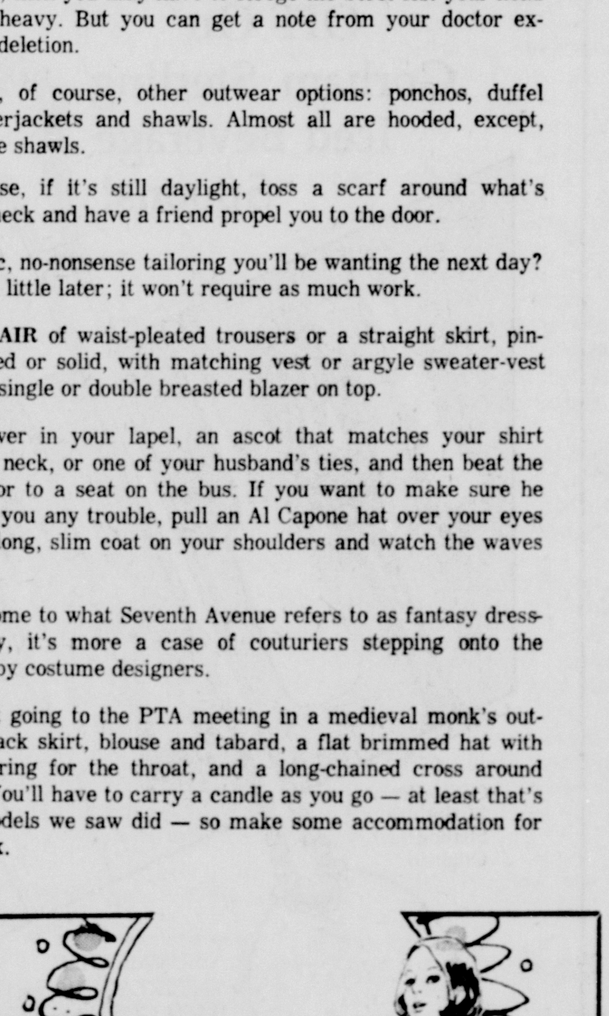

PERHAPS YOU'RE more inclined to the Slavic look. The kind of thing Latvian potato peasants would wear if they had the money. Satin bouffant skirts and blouses in vivid patterns, topped with boleros and babushkas, and finished with black Cossack boots.

But if you really want to turn heads, turn up in a pair of Turkish pantaloons in shocking pink or green, paired with a see-through, embroidered black top.

Don't worry about shoes with this last getup. You go barefoot.

And chances are you won't go too far.

Few join diet groups

Men won't admit they're fatties

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

An Overeaters Anonymous member likes to tell the story of a concerned husband who'd complain constantly about his wife's extra baggage. After badgering her to join a diet group, he would keep close tabs on her progress and gripe if the results weren't noticable — at the same time blithely ignoring his own beer belly and jiggling chin.

According to members of several area diet groups, such scenes are common among male fatties. The overweight man will rationalize his size for years ("they're just making clothes skimpier this season") before finally admitting his problem and seeking help. As a result, there are plenty of chubby men, but not many are joining their wives and girlfriends in diet groups.

"Most men just won't own up to the fact that they're fat," says Carole of Overeaters Anonymous (OA). "They'd rather join an exercise group than a diet group just because it's such a stigma. And of course, there's still a lot more social pressure for a woman to lose weight."

OA's MALE membership is between 10 and 15 per cent of the total, and the percentage has remained fairly steady since the group was founded in 1963. Most men experience "no problems at all" once they join OA. In fact, the more active lifestyle of many men means that "men tend to lose weight more easily than women, which is downright disheartening for us," she says.

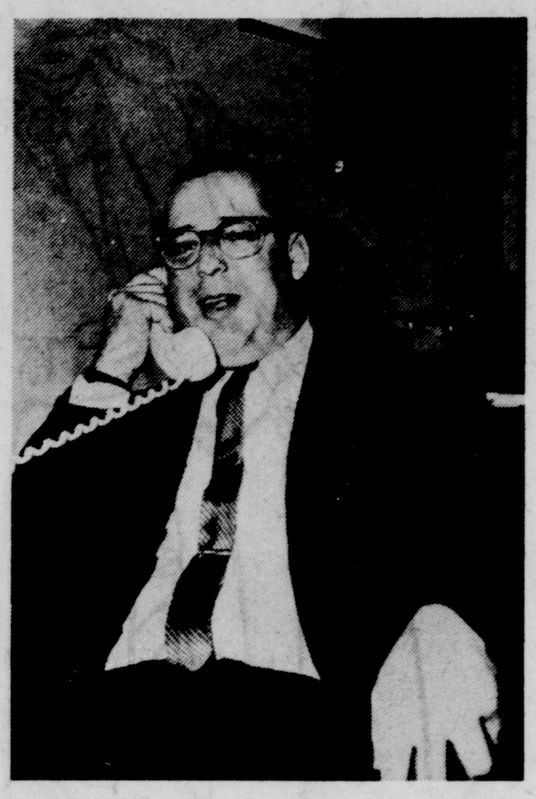

Bob Sidman of Diet Workshop agrees that many men refuse to acknowledge a weight problem, and he ought to know — at 6 foot 4 inches and 235 pounds, he slimmed down from 325 pounds after admitting he needed help.

"Let's face it, we men are very vain," Sidman ways with a chuckle. "We have to be threatened to join a weight loss program, and that threat usually comes from either the doctor or the man's job."

"IN MOST WHITE collar jobs, the guy at the correct weight will get the promotion over the fat man, and the overweight guy becomes an expense to his employer because he tends to miss more days at work," Sidman adds.

Diet Workshop has no men in its classes now, but Sidman says he has had "a few" in the past, and he reports, several women are working on their husbands to join.

Opinions vary on the men's reactions once they're enticed into a predominately female weight control group. TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) has three men's chapters in the Skokie area, but in the Northwest suburbs men attend with the women. TOPS member Marilyn Wax reports a few negative reactions, but says most are from women who are a little embarrassed at the prospect of a male in their midst.

BEFORE LEN FINCKLE, lecturer for Chicago Weight Watchers, shed 65 pounds, he stuck to dark suits, left, and would never wear vests or plaids. Most fat men have to be dragged to such diet groups as Weight Watchers and then only when told by their doctor or employer to lose weight.

THE BIGGEST problem weight control groups face in their attempt to attract men is an image of a diet group as something like a fatties' Alcoholics Anonymous, says Len Finckle, Chicago's only male lecturer for Weight Watchers.

"Once we get them through the front door, it's all downhill," says Finckle, an advertising exectuive who's shed 70 pounds since joining Weight Watchers. "But a lot of men and women think you'll have to get up in front of the group and announce your weight. It's just not like that."

Finckle admits he gets "a little flak" at his lectures when the predominately female audiences ask how he can advise women on losing weight, but he says he has to "establish that we're talking about a fat person; the problems are the same."

"IT'S TRUE THAT many women join in groups to lose a few extra pounds, while men tend to wait until they're 30 or more pounds overweight," says Finckle, "but taking it off is the same." And while housewives may have to stare at that refrigerator all day long, "there are plenty of offices where it's always someone's birthday," he adds.

Finckle himself graduated from high school at a trim 5 foot 10 inches, 150 pounds, but his downfall came when he switched from loading furniture to a desk job. His hearty appetite stayed with him, and so did the pounds; he was up to 225 by the time he was 21.

It was his doctor who finally convinced him to attend Weight Watchers, and he's lost the weight in a little less than a year. But he keeps in mind that "it's not a cure — I've been in the group for close to five years, but I could put it all back in 30 days."

More clothing choice for male on a diet

While most men may hate to admit their beer belly has got out of control, those who do will find both feast and famine when it comes to picking out clothes.

According to Clyde Pitts at "Mr. Big" in Woodfield Mall, more and more clothing stores are catering to the man on a diet. While big sizes (48 to 60) make up only eight per cent of the market, "men are definitely getting bigger these days," Pitts says.

"The normal size 10 years ago was a 38 and it's up to 44 now. There's a lot more selection in large size than there used to be."

THE OVERSIZE male, contrary to popular opinion, need not dress in baggy grey suits in an effort to camouflage his weight, Pitts says. Most overweight men feel as if "they're standing out like a sore thumb," he says, and "when you see a big dark blob in a sea of light colors, it only makes it worse."

Light colors, plaids and even the popular vested suit can all be worn "if the outfit is coordinated and if it fits properly," Pitts says. Fit is the key in big men's clothing, he says, because the sizes fluctuate in both directions while a man is trying to lose weight. As a result, free alterations and re-alterations are standard procedure for big men's shops.

Of course, fighting the battle of the bulge does have a few ground rules: side-vented jackets, loud patterns, wide ties and lapels, and clunky shoes only add to a big man's girth. Solids or subtle stripes are slimming, and moderation is important — you need not dress like a conservative banker, but flashy plaids are best reserved for the slimmer days ahead.

DESPITE THE growing number of fashionable styles and large-size shops, most overweight men still hate to shop because they're used to the "we have a few on the back rack" treatment, Pitts says. And while tailors can alter a garment once the pounds melt away, "there's only so much a tailor can do," notes Len Finckle.

"You face the fact that you must wear baggy, sloppy clothes part of the time. You buy less expensive clothing; sports jackets and slacks replace suits."

4-H members to model own fashions in show

North Cook County 4-H Club members will present their annual Fashion Revue Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. on the mall at Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect.

This year a few boys will be joining about 150 girls in participating in the clothing division competition, which includes projects in knitting, crocheting, sewing and buying clothing. The young people range in age from 8 to 18.

A full day of judging for construction and garment fit will conclude with the modeling and presentation of trophy winners in five categories: Knitting and Crocheting, Learning to Sew (first and second years), Make Your Own Clothes (third, fourth, fifth and sixth, seventh and eighth), Fun Classes and Buying Clothing.

IN ADDITION the girls chosen to represent North Cook County in the State Dress Revue and Clothing Construction and Buying Clothing competition at the Illinois State Fair in Springfield will be announced.

Clothing judging will be completed the morning of the Revue by qualified persons in the clothing and textiles field and the following 4-H member junior judges: Barbara Austin (Lake-Cook Kids), Julie Jacobs (Sparkling Spirits), Terri LeBar (TrailBlazers) and Holly Vogt (Palatine Pros and Panthers). It will be held at St. Peter Lutheran School, Arlington Heights. At the time of the judging each participant has the opportunity to sit with the judge and obrain information and pointers on sewing.

THE SCRIPT for the evening show at Randhurst was written by 4-H members including Barbara Austin, Barrington; Laura Caravello, Rolling Meadows; Donna Fey, Mount Prospect, Karen Scholl, Barrington; Holly Vogt, Palatine; and Mindy Wilson, Barrington Hills. Barbara, Laura, Karen, Holly and Mari Keffer, Barrington, will do the commentating.

All entries in the competition will be displayed at the 1976 North Cook County Fair that starts July 30 at Knights of Columbus grounds on Kelsey Road, Barrington.

A century of fashion in Paris exhibition

by ALINE MOSBY

Nowhere is the Liberation of Woman more apparent than in what she wears underneath her clothes.

The underwear revolution of the past century is one curiosity of a summer exhibition in Paris, "One Century of Paris Fashion, 1865-1965."

On display at the New Palais Des Congres are 120 outfits made by Paris couturiers for 100 years, beginning with 1865 when designer Worth turned Paris fashion into a world-renowned institution by showing creations for the first time on live mannequins in what now is called "a fashion show."

On the edge of the exposition are displays of what went under these clothes. First, hoopskirts made of strips of wood and later wire, and then bustles and superbustles, and numerous petticoats, waist cinchers, corsets, stockings and pantaloons that were piled on with them — six and a half pounds worth, one sign says.

THE FINAL DISPLAY of 1965 fashions in the exhibition shows that by then women had whittled all those six and a half pounds down to a few ounces of pantyhose, period.

"The displays of underclothing are evidence of the 100 years of change in the condition of women, much more so than their outer garments," said the organizer of the show, Yvonne Deslandres, director of the French Union of Costume Art, a historical association supported by various garment and fashion unions of Paris.

Another conclusion of spectators at the exposition is that fashion follows current events.

The protected, covered-up woman of the 19th century changed drastically just before and during World War I and during the following explosion in communications and transportation. The couturieres Poiret, Vionnet and Chanel took her out of stiff, binding garments and into looser clothes that freed the waistline and later bared arms and then legs.

MISS DESLANDRES thinks the 1929 drop of skirts represented the urge for protection during the Great Depression.

Only after the austerity of World War II did women flirt briefly with complicated waist cinchers and petticoats, during the 1948 Dior "new look" era. Then ample postwar supplies of fabric plus the relief of peace brought a fashion revolution.

The quickly changing styles of the 1950s and 1960s appear to illustrate the consumers' era. The show ends with the 1965 revolutionary mini skirts and trousers of Andre Courreges that once and for all freed women of the necessity of wearing traditional "clothes" or even of following fashion at all.

The exposition also shows that women who wore the Paris styles in France until recent years belonged only to the wealthy circles. By the 1960s the increasing democratization of society and growth of ready-to-wear industries had filtered the styles down to all income levels.

MISS DESLANDRES single-handedly has collected 4,850 examples of Paris hand-made clothes from both designers and customers.

This fortune in embroidered, beaded, feathered creations is packed in boxes in the union headquarters that also houses a library on fashion used largely by stylists for the ready-to-wear industry looking for ideas.

She has lent many models to museums in London and New York for restropective fashion shows, but she believes this Paris exhibition is the world's first attempt to cover fashion over a period as long as 100 years.

"Next year I plan to do another exposition, of styles of the last 10 years, including ready-to-wear of France," she said. "We hope some day to organize a permanent costume museum in Paris. But that's up to the government. It's unbelievable that there is no costume museum here, the center of world fashion."

Osteopath warns women will pay later for today's poor posture

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

Dr. Catherine Carlton is appalled by women's upstanding attitude these days.

In a phone interview from her Fort Worth, Tex., office, the president-elect of the American Academy of Osteopathy said:

"There's no pride in posture anymore. I seldom see a young girl in my office who isn't slouching in her chair or with one foot tucked up under her. Years ago, they used to have posture queens. Now, even the models roll their shoulders forward, for some reason, and this isn't good for the looks."

Those girls slouching in her waiting room are there, Dr. Carlton says, to complain of aches and pains resulting from bad posture. And — here's where ulcers are going to throb on Seventh Avenue — she sees a connection between current fashions and crumpled carriage.

"THE SLOUCHY, loose clothes don't hold the stomach in which doesn't help the posture any," she says. "You see, all the nerves to all the organs of the body make their exit from the spine and if the organs of the body are going to get the best impulses, they are going to come from an area that's straight.

"Ideally, a woman should keep her muscles toned by walking a lot or swimming and hanging from a crossbar twice a day tostraighten the spine."

If, however, she's relying on loose clothing to camouflage lazy muscles, "she should wear a little garter belt. I'm not too crazy about girdles. A tight one backs up the venal blood in the legs and causes vericose veins. And I don't think women should wear pantyhose all the time because it prevents air from getting to the vagina which makes it more likely to get a fungus there."

THE EMPIRE waistline, she says, "restricts the motion of the rib cage and you can't breathe. So you can't aerate the blood as well. You'd do better to have the waist at the natural waistline.

"And when young ladies go without bras, it will make their breasts sag and break the tissues. It's better having support there and possibly help hold up the shoulder." Especially for those well endowed.

Speaking of shoulders, since 85 per cent of humanity is righthanded, she says, "we drop the right shoulder often because we're always reaching down for things with our right hands. That puts a curve in the spine to the right, which crowds the rib cage where the concavity is and isn't good for the lungs." Use your left hand more, she urges. "Get acquainted with it."

And lighten up that shoulder bag and alternate it from one shoulder to the other.

THE "BEST BET in shoes," she says, "is one that's no higher than an inch and a half and offers some support in the arch. If the arch goes down, the knee tends to roll in so you become knock-kneed, so to speak. If you have a little bit of an arch, you walk correctly, stepping first on the heel of the foot, then the outside and finally the toes. That's perfect. You tend to have a better knee and a better back which means if you have good structure, you have good function." No lower back pains, in other words.

"Sneakers are all right for tennis but not to wear all day long. A low-heeled sandal is fine if it has support. Just because it's open to the air doesn't mean it's bad. And the Earth show is excellent. I believe it helps the posture by changing the center of balance. In pregnant women where they tend to be front heavy, this tilts them back."

So, ladies, put that bra on, tuck that stomach in under that tunic, and get that left hand moving. And, to make sure you're standing up straight, Dr. Carlton offers a simple precaution; look in the mirror.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Causes of prostate trouble are several

I read your column on prostate gland trouble, but it did not answer one question. If a person (who has been a diabetic since 1965 and is now 56) quit sex, would he increase his prostate gland trouble, which is nearly nothing now? I go to the doctor once a year. In other words does lack of sex cause prostate gland trouble?

There is a lot of confusion about the role of sexual activity in prostate gland trouble. That is partly because "prostate gland trouble" covers a lot of different problems.

The prostate gland forms secretions and when it is stimulated frequently, it forms more secretions. Young men at the peak of their sex drive tend to form the most secretions. When the secretions accumulate, the gland becomes boggy or swollen from distention. In this condition it is ripe for bacteria to set up housekeeping and cause an acute infection. The infection in this instance is something like an abscess. It may cause chills and fever. When the bacteria are eliminated by nature's own defense mechanisms or by proper antibiotic treatment, the infection and its symptoms disappear. It would seem that a normal amount of sexual activity helps to prevent this problem.

The acute infections have nothing to do with chronic prostate trouble that is more common in middle-aged and older men. The chronic inflammation may be associated with a variety of organisms, but often the real cause of the inflammation is not known. It is doubtful that sexual activity either harms or helps such a condition.

There is now evidence that the enlargement of the prostate that causes obstruction of the bladder is related to the accumulation of one chemical type of testosterone, the male hormone. Having demonstrated the accumulation of this fraction of the hormone in the gland itself, there is now hope that it will be possible to block its action or storage and in this way correct or prevent prostate enlargement. This might be done without affecting the function of the other fractions of male hormone. At present no medicine is available that will do this.

I am sending you The Health Letter 1-6, Prostate Gland to give you more information on this subject. Others who desire more information on the prostate can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents in it. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I want to know if a vasectomy causes prostate gland trouble? And once a man has had prostate surgery does that mean no more sex?

No a vasectomy will not cause prostate gland trouble. In fact vasectomies were originally done when the prostate was operated upon to try to prevent inflammation of the testicles as a complication of the procedure. All a vasectomy will do is prevent sperm cells from reaching the prostate. The gland will continue to function as it always did or would have without the vasectomy.

Most men can return to normal sexual function after prostate surgery. The type of surgery does make some difference. The problem is that many men who have surgery are already at an age or have enough other medical problems that they may be near the end of their active sexual life anyway. In which case the man may incorrectly think that impotence after surgery was because of the operation.

Emergency measures if freezer conks out

Dear Dorothy: If a refrigerator-freezer or a freezer breaks down (of course, this is always bound to happen at night or on a weekend when you can't get service), what does one do to keep the food from spoiling? —Bette Jacobs

Anyone with a freezer ought to keep a list of places where dry ice can be obtained — and especially on weekends. Then you have a fall-back position in case of an emergency. If a freezer is fairly full and the door kept closed, frozen food ought to stay frozen 48 hours. A block of dry ice, loosely wrapped to deter evaporation, provides all the extra protection needed. A smaller piece of dry ice, similarly handled, should provide sufficient cooling to keep a refrigerator fairly cold. One precaution: Never handle dry ice with bare hands. You can get a nasty burn from it.

Dear Dorothy: Can you use any laundry soap in a dogwood tree to keep borers away? I haven't been able to find the naphtha soap you mentioned. —Mrs. Bill McAdam

I'm surprised you haven't found naphtha soap. It's still one of the most popular laundry soaps and I see it in almost all the supermarkets. It isn't the fact that it's a laundry soap; it's the naphtha smell that seems to repel borers. Insects are repelled by certain odors. Flies apparently dislike the odor of lavender. Borers stay away from naphtha. Take another look in the store.

Dear Dorothy: We're thinking of a filter for our cold water faucet. Could such a filter be dangerous: —Diane Drucker

Don't see how. Activated charcoal is the substance used in these filters and that's about as safe as anything we use.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Weddings

Susan Radcliffe – Guy Eisenhuth

An Arlington Heights couple who were classmates at St. Peter Lutheran School since first grade and went together from eighth grade through high school and college were married June 19 at 5 p.m. in St. Peter Lutheran Church.

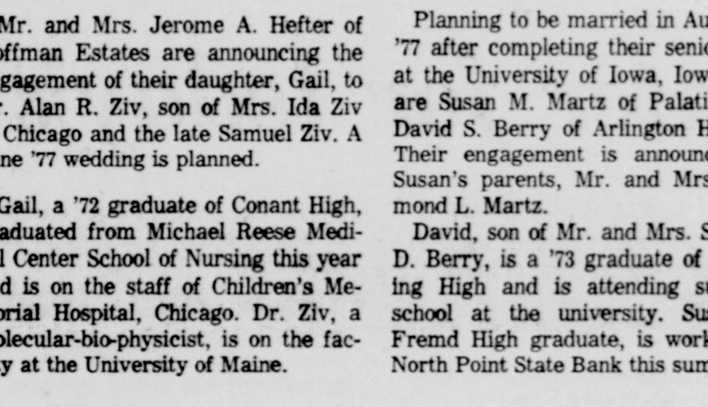

The bride is the former Susan Kay Radcliffe, daughter of the Albert E. Radcliffes, and the groom is Guy William Eisenhuth III, son of the junior G. W. Eisenhuths.

For the candlelight, double ring ceremony, Susan wore a polyester chiffon gown with lace accents, made by her bridesmaid Margaret Newton of Buffalo Grove. With it she wore Margaret's chapel-length bridal veil and a Juliet cap and carried yellow roses with stephanotis and baby's breath.

HER MAID of honor was her sister, Nancy, and the other bridesmaids included another sister, Janet; Debbie Westman, Rolling Meadows, her cousin; Peggy Prellwitz, Tacoma, Wash.; and Kim Shaw and Shawn Schaerf of Arlington Heights.

The girls all wore yellow chiffonette and carried mixed bouquets of pastel flowers.

Wayne Eisenhuth was his brother's best man, with his two other brothers, Glenn and Richard; the bride's brother, Steven; Dale and Dean Winkelmann, Rolling Meadows; and Tom Henderson, Gurnee, as groomsmen.

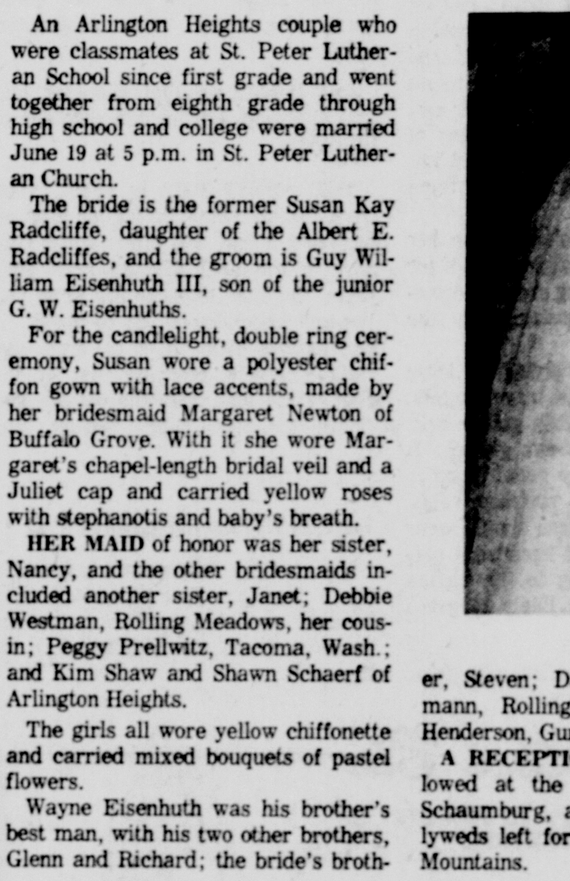

Mr. and Mrs. Guy W. Eisenhuth III

A RECEPTION for 200 guests followed at the Lancer Steak House, Schaumburg, after which the newlyweds left for a week in the Smoky Mountains.

They are living in Champaign where the bride is a nurse in a hospital and the groom is attending the University of Illinois. Susan graduated from Hersey High and Harper College's nursing program. Guy is a graduate of Arlington High.

Mary Margaret Deger – Mark Seevers

A high school romance culminated in a June 5 wedding for Mary Margaret Deger and Mark Jonathan Seevers, both of Arlington Heights. They graduated from Arlington High and then earned degrees from the College of Notre Dame in Belmont, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Seevers

Their 11 a.m. ceremony took place in St. Peter Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Deger and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Seevers.

CHRISTINE EPERSETH, Mount Prospect, was maid of honor; bridesmaids were the couple's sisters, Carol and Patricia Deger and Hildy Seevers, Chicago. Mark's brother, John, was best man, with the couple's brothers, Larry Deger and Paul Seevers, along with Paul Thompson, Chapel Hill, N.C., as groomsmen.

Seating the wedding guests were Bill Barlow, Toronto, Canada, and Pat Bosshart, Boston.

An outdoor reception under a red and white striped tent at the Deger home followed for 150 guests. The couple then spent a weekend at Yosemite National Park before going to San Mateo, Calif., to make their home. Mark works there for Steyer-Ayanian Enterprises.

Immigrant memories remain unfaded

In this Wisconsin museum you'll find a variety of views of ethnic life as it was a century ago

Old World Wisconsin, the new living museum commemorating the state's immigrants, opened last month in Eagle, Wis.

The nearly 600-acre museum, containing actual homes and farm buildings constructed in 19th Century Wisconsin, is located in the south central part of the state in the rolling countryside of the Kettle Moraine state forest.

Many historic Wisconsin structures, mostly the types of houses, shops and farm buildings restored for the museum, disappeared in recent years, victims of fire, vandals and bulldozers.

Old World Wisconsin is far from complete. Officials of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, which is developing it, emphasize that this summer's visitors will see only a part of what is expected to become one of the world's major "living museums," in some ways similar to Colonial Williamsburg in Virginia, Old Sturbridge Village, Mass., and famous European outdoor museums.

It is Wisconsin's major Bicentennial project, although it will take another two or three years to fully develop.

OLD WORLD Wisconsin will "stand as a legacy to the Bicentennial long after the parades and birthday party aspects are forgotten," said James Morton Smith, the Historical Society director.

Museum officials emphasize that they are "building a community," and that visitors can watch it grow. One of the most interesting attractions is workmen rebuilding the structures, hammering square nails, sawing, using broadaxes and laying mortar as it was done in pioneer days.

On the drawing boards are such complexes as Swedish, Irish, French, Swiss, Bohemian, Afro-American, Polish exhibits and several more. Some will be farmsteads. Other nationalities will be represented in a "village."

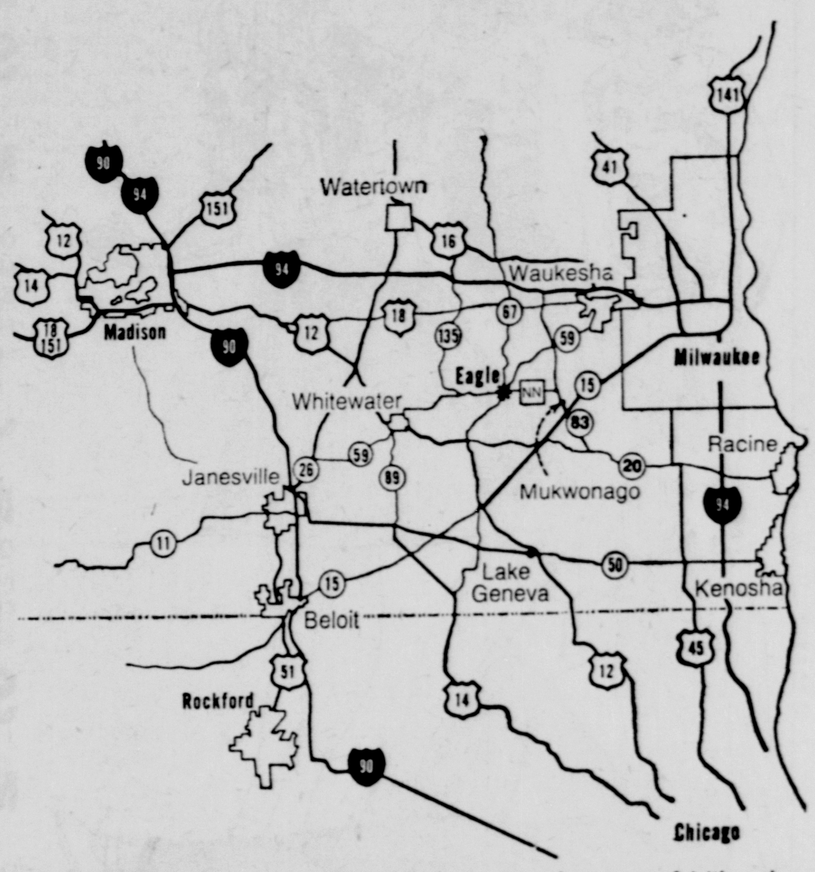

Old World Wisconsin is the only outdoor museum in the world that will show multi-ethnic history. Others, such as Williamsburg and Sweden's famed Skansen Museum, emphasize homogeneous societies, not the great mixture of immigrant groups that found their way to the Badger State.

WHEN WISCONSIN became a state in 1848, its population was about 300,000. By the turn of the century, it numbered two million and included people from more than 30 countries, making it the most ethnically mixed state in the Union, according to Historical Society souhces.

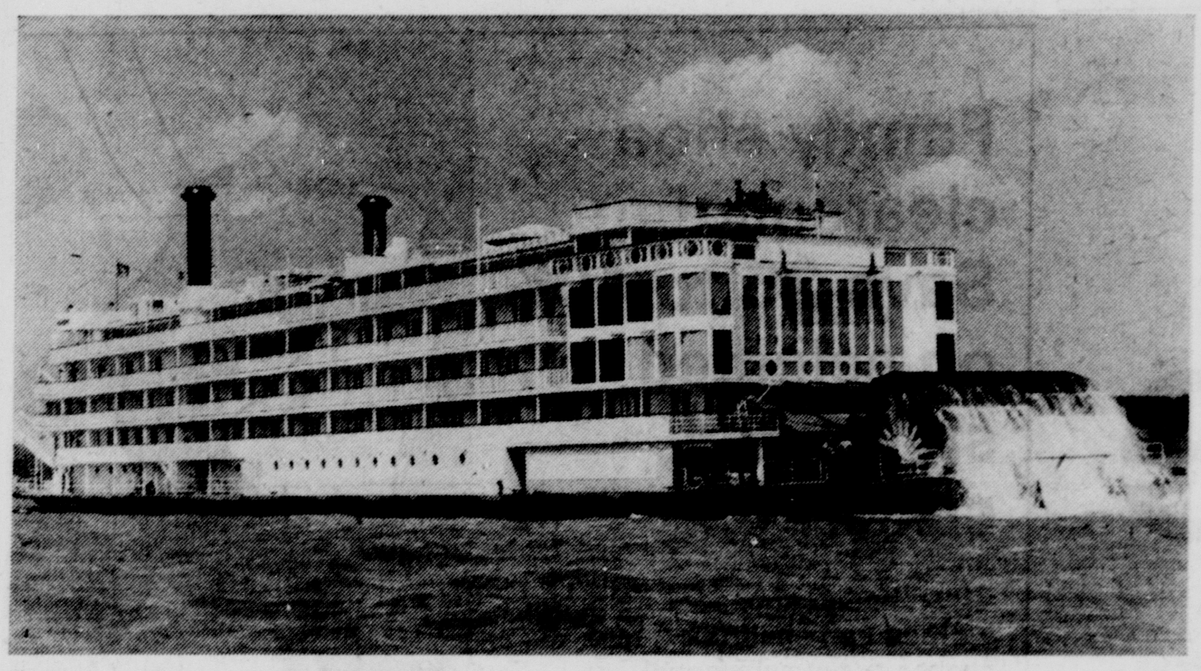

Americans' recently acquired mass enthusiasm for antiquities is helping Old World Wisconsin develop, providing government and individual funds to build the $5 million project. Museum officials already have put aside a great many pioneer structures, some moved as units here, but most of them carefully taken apart, log by log and stone by stone, then restored using old plans and photographs as guides.

The Koepsel house, for example, is a rare example of Pomeranian-German half-timer construction. It was built about 1860 by carpenter Frederick Koepsel in the town of Jackson in Washington County. The house was in poor condition when it was disassembled and brought here. Since then, more than $75,000 has been spent to restore it to near-perfect condition.

Old World Wisconsin is open seven days a week, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission charges are $2.50 for adults, $1.25 for ages 6 through 15, and children under 6 free, senior citizens $2 and families $7.50.

OLD WORLD Wisconsin is located about 40 miles west of Milwaukee. Main entrance is on Hwy. 67 just south of Eagle, Wis.

THE MISSISSIPPI Queen undergoes river trials on the Ohio River prior to the steamboat's maiden voyage scheduled July 27. Beginning Aug. 14 the boat will make 11 cruises this season.

Mississippi Queen rigged for maiden river voyage

The Mississippi Queen, sister vessel of the Delta Queen, will be commissioned Sunday as a U. S. Merchant Marine Vessel in ceremonies at the Cincinnati Public Landing.

The new overnight steamboat — the first built in 50 years — will depart July 27 on her maiden voyage, an 18-night round trip from Cincinnati, Ohio, to New Orleans, La. Major ports for the Mississippi Queen are Pittsburgh, Louisville, Memphis, St. Paul, St. Louis and New Orleans.

During her cruises on the 3,000 miles of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, she will make port calls in Mark Twain's Hannibal, Mo., Brigham Young's Nauvoo, Ill., and Abraham Lincoln's Evansville, Ind. She also will stop in Baton Rouge, La., the only Revolutionary War battleground outside the 13 original colonies, and Vicksburg, Miss., where Union and Confederate troops battled for 47 days during the Civil War.

BEGINNING AUG. 14 the Mississippi Queen will make 11 round-trip cruises out of New Orleans as part of her maiden season. Nine of these Old South cruises are seven nights, one is eight nights and one is five nights.

The Mississippi Queen has modern conveniences that one never would have dreamed of on a 19th century steamboat. She is equipped with a swimming pool, sauna, exercise room, massage parlor, movie theater, a steam calliope with an electronic digital recording and playback system, beauty salon, two elevators and air conditioning throughout.

All staterooms are above the waterline and include a shower and toilet, wall-to-wall carpeting, individual room temperature control, a two-channel radio, and an intra-vessel telephone. Many staterooms also have private verandas.

The Grand Saloon and Dining Saloon have been put on the Observation Deck and are surrounded by wide expanses of glass, affording an uninterrupted view of the everchanging shoreline.

The Paddle Bar, two decks high and glass enclosed, overlooks the steamboat's great red paddlewheel. Relaxing here, one can all but feel the spray from the bucketboards of the churning wheel. The Calliope Bar is located topside and is perfect for sipping a cool refreshment while cruising in the great outdoors and listening to favorite tunes on the "steam pianna."

In St. Francisville, the Mississippi Queen's passengers will tour Rosedown Plantation and Gardens, a lavish 1855 Greek Revival mansion complete with the furniture and accessories of the plantation era.

THE MISSISSIPPI QUEEN occasionally will tie up to a chinaberry tree in Natchez, Tenn., as riverboats have done at this famous river port for more than a century and a half. When passenges step ashore here they enter a beautiful world of crinoline and hoop skirts and sumptuous antebellum mansions filled to their rooftops with antiques, most of them the prizes of the old plantation owners who traded cotton for the finery imported from Europe.

The highlights of the Baton Rouge tour are the Louisiana State University Rural Life Museum and Magnolia Mound Plantation House. Built on a four acre tract, the Rural Life Museum is a reconstructed Louisiana plantation settlement complete with worker's cabins, blacksmith shop, sugar house, one-room schoolhouse, church and cemetery. Magnolia Mound Plantation House is furnished in the Federal style and was built in 1790 in a manner typical of the French and Spanish adaptation to the Louisiana climate.

Fares for the seven-night cruise begin at $385 per person. Fares for the eight-night cruise begin at $520. For the five-night cruise, fares begin at $325. Fares per person include berth, meals, entertainment and steamboat passage. Brochures and further information can be obtained from The Delta Queen Steamboat Co., Dept. CQ, 322 E. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio, 45202.

Bicentennial lives on in Philadelphia

The Fourth of July has come and gone but festivities in Philadelphia are still going strong.

According to the Philadelphia Convention and Visitors Bureau, Freedom Week and the Fourth of July festivities are only the beginning of a full-scale, summer-long program of Bicentennial activities occurring daily in the streets, parks, historical and cultural attractions of the Bicentennial City.

There are still hotel rooms available throughout the area for travelers planning Bicentennial vacations in Philadelphia this summer. Hotel folders are available as well as information on the economical, three-day, two-night package plan, "Vacations in Bicentennial Philadelphia." The package offers tourists accommodations at a wide choice of center city, suburban and airport hotels plus a sightseeing tour of the historic city and discount admissions to many of the major attractions.

Package plan bookings can be made through any travel agent or airline or by dialing the toll-free number, 800-228-1776.

The Bicentennial has sparked a cultural explosion in Philadelphia with several, permanent new museums — such as the Living History Center, the Mummers Museum, the Black History Museum, Penn Mutual's Philadelphia and Americana Jubilee.

Established institutions have responded to "Bicentennial Fever" by launching major restoration campaigns and mounting landmark Bicentennial exhibitions — such as "Futures" at the Franklin Institute, "Three Centuries of American Art" at the Art Museum, and "Design For Fun" at the Civic Center Museum.

Outside, on the cobblestoned streets of the "olde city," on the tree-lined sidewalks of the Benjamin Franklin Parkway, and in the city's many plazas and parks, strolling troubadours entertain tourists as they wander between attractions, street theaters and puppet shows make history come alive, and live music and dance performances provide a welcome respite for footsore tourists.

In the evening, there's no letup in the parade of special activities. Under the big tent at the new Independence Mall Pavilion nightly performances of the rousing Bicentennial musical, "1776", tell the story of America's early years. Across the street, Independence Hall is the backdrop for a nightly sound and light spectacle, "A Nation is Born."

For information on attractions, Bicentennial events, accommodations, restaurants, package plans, etc., contact the Philadelphia Convention and Visitors Bureau, 1525 John F. Kennedy Blvd., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102. Telephone 215-864-1976.

Plenty to do in Wisconsin

More than 200 celebrations are listed in Wisconsin's July calendar of events this Bicentennial year including county fairs and annual festivals.

County fairs scheduled for this month include Juneau County at Mauston, July 22-25; Columbia County at Portage, July 27-Aug. 1; Green County at Monroe and Barron County at Rice Lake, July 28-Aug. 1; and Ozaukee County at Cedarburg, Trempealeau County at Galesville and Monroe County at Tomah, July 29-Aug. 1.

A sampling of events for the second half of July includes the 12th annual Port Washington Fish Day July 24 featuring a parade, fish derby, drum and bugle corps competition, blue grass music and fireworks.

International road racers return to Elkhart Lake's Road America track July 23-25 for the combined Trans-Am and Formula 5000 races. The Trans-Am series pits various sports sedans against each other and Sunday the F-5000 matches open seat formula racers over the hilly and wooded four-mile road course.

A part of the Cedar Grove's annual Holland Festival July 30-31 is the scrubbing of the main street by townsfolks in authentic costume. Once the streets have been cleaned to the satisfaction of the "Inspekteur" and village "Burgemeester" the Klompen Dansers, in traditional wooden shoes, dance along the street. Ethnic food stands, a parade and queen pageant are also featured during the celebration.

Disneyworld Day set at Woodfield

The American Express Travel Service in Woodfield Mall, Schaumburg, will celebrate Disneyworld Day Wednesday.

Mike Mouse and Don Duck will be on hand from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. along with friends from Eastern Airlines, American International Rent-A-Car, local hotels from the Disneyworld area and Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor.

There will be slides of the Disneyworld area, a few surprises and old-fashioned ice cream sundaes for 15 cents.

Festivals galore set in Michigan

Festivals dot the Michigan state map this month including some annual favorites as well as events planned around the nation's Bicentennial celebration.

Log rolling is an old-time skill employed by lumberjacks on the rivers and mill ponds of Michigan during one of its most colorful periods and it will be one of the major highlights of the 17th Annual Great Lakes Forestry Exposition at Mio, July 22-24.

Skimming some of the other offerings during the month there's the Cheese Festival at Pinconning, July 22-24; Doe-Wah-Jack Summer Festival, Dowagiac, July 22-25; Polish Festival Days at Bronson, July 29-31; the Potato Festival at Munger; July 29-Aug. 1; Southwest Michigan Indian Pow Wow in the Amphitheater at Jones, July 31-Aug. 1; and the Coast Guard Festival at Grand Haven, July 31-Aug. 1.

Detroits Ethnic Festival program includes Armenian, July 23-25; and the Ukrainian Festival, July 30-Aug. 1.

Some 20 4-H, agricultural and county fairs are listed in the July calendar along with numerous arts and crafts fairs including the Ann Arbor Art Fair, July 21-24.

We are, ACCO INTERNATIONAL, a leading manufacturer of office and school supplies. We are moving to Wheeling because we need room to continue to grow and prosper. We are an old time company (70 years) with young ideas. We have career opportunities in the following areas:

- Shipping Room Packers
- Lift Truck Operators
- Order Pickers
- Design Draftsman
- Tool & Die Maker
- Maintenance Mechanic
- Maintenance Electricians
- Secretary-Engineering
- Export Clerk
- Accounts Receivable Clerk
- Distribution
- Customer Service
- Handyman
- Stock Handler

Our Production Departments will begin operation in Wheeling on August 9th, with the offices following in 7 to 10 days. Excellent company benefits include company paid profit sharing and full hospitalization. Our modern, new world headquarters are in final stages of construction at the corners of Wolf and Hintz Roads in Wheeling.

MADAM, YOU NEED TO WORK . . .

- If your family would be placed in dire financial straits in the event your husband were to be laid off even for a short time.
- If your savings amount to only whatever is in the family piggy bank.
- If your daily routine involves watching TV soap opera after TV soap opera, pushing the vacuum cleaner over worn out rugs, and popping frozen dinners into the oven.
- If your personal wardrobe closet looks as bare as MOTHER HUBBARD'S CUPBOARD.
- If your husband is working two or more jobs and as a result the kids barely get to see their daddy.
- If. . .(you fill in your own ifs).

We currently have available some light and clean assembly and packaging jobs ideally suited to women, with or without previous factory experience.

Excellent working conditions within an ultra modern air conditioned plant, friendly coworkers, fine employee benefits and excellent earning potential.

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

Aggressive financial service organization located in the NW suburbs is seeking a competent dedicated and loyal person to be the Executive Secretary to our President.

We are an international company that is rapidly expanding with new modern offices. Our President is hard working with many business and social contacts demanding but not dictatorial, very compassionate and a great motivator of people.

We are not seeking just a secretary but someone who truly will be his Administrative Assistant, a career type person who has the creativity, ingenuity and aggressiveness to take day to day routine off his shoulders. Above average skills and business experience needed.

Please send us your biological data in complete confidence today. G-82, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Hts., Il. 60006.

SECRETARIES

Several openings are available for secretaries with varying levels of experience. Minimum of 60 wpm typing required (one position requires shorthand).

Reagan has more delegates than needed: manager

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Sears, Ronald Reagan's campaign manager, said Monday the GOP challenger now has 10 more delegates than the 1,130 needed to defeat President Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

Telling a news conference Reagan's delegate support was "in the range of 1,140," Sears said: "I'm more confident he will be nominated on the first ballot than I have ever been before."

UPI's latest delegate tally, by contrast, shows Ford leading Reagan 1,102 to 1,062 with 95 delegates uncommitted. By that tally, Ford is but 28 away from the number needed for a first ballot nomination.

Sears also announced the names of three previously uncommitted delegates who have pledged their support to Reagan at next month's GOP convention in Kansas City.

The delegates were identified as Mrs. John "Natalie" McElroy of Jamestown, N.D.; William Lee of Sussex County, Del.; and Earl Patterson of Richmond, Va.

Sears said he plans to release the names of additional so-called "uncommitted" delegates later this week. He said the number would be "around double figures."

Reagan officials called the news conference to counter published reports that campaign aids to the former California governor have said their man has little chance of upsetting Ford for the nomination.

"Our count shows we will have sufficient delegate strength on the first ballot," Sears said.

The Washington news conference was part of a concerted effort by Reagan supporters to counter the impact of the published reports.

In Nashua, N.H., Reagan's New Hampshire campaign director, former Gov. Hugh Gregg, said the Californian has enough "confidential delegate commitments" to give him the Republican presidential nomination on the first ballot.

"Gov. Reagan plans a first ballot victory at the Republican National Convention in Kansas City next month," Gregg said. He said his personal expectation was that it would be a "tight" win, with Reagan having about a 5 per cent margin.

Sears said the Reagan delegate count included a number of uncommitted delegates who have privately indicated to Reagan's campaign strategists they will support the GOP conservative on the first ballot.

The chief Reagan delegate, Hunter, said he has believed all along that there is a "a great degree of softness in Ford's delegate count." He said his own count placed the number of truly uncommitted delegates around 150.

Sears said he expects Reagan to pick up more than 25 uncommitted delegates in New York and more than nine in New Jersey, two states where Ford is considered the overwhelming party favorite.

The Reagan figures conflict with UPI's tally, which shows Ford has 60 of the 67 delegates from New Jersey. To win 25 in New York, Reagan would have to pick up seven of the 11 currently uncommitted.

Sears said he believed the Ford campaign was "including many (in its delegate count) who were elected as uncommitted delegates," but many of whom will be supporting Reagan at the convention.

Carter wins backing of Meany and AFL-CIO

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter got the endorsement of George Meany and the AFL-CIO Monday and began plotting strategy for the fall campaign and the possible start of a new administration.

Meany placed a telephone call to Carter at his home early in the afternoon to give him the endorsement that he withheld from George McGovern throughout the entire 1972 presidential campaign.

"I want to thank the AFL-CIO executive committee," Carter said in a statement released through his press aides.

"I have discussed with Mr. Meany and other labor leaders the need for voter registration and getting out the vote this fall. I look forward to their cooperation in efforts to see that American working men and women take part fully in the electoral process."

Plunging into campaign business after a quiet weekend at home, Carter also scheduled a meeting with top aides at his home Tuesday for "a general discussion on the fall campaign and the role of the vice presidential nominee."

Planned participants included campaign manager Hamilton Jordon; Stewart Eizenstat, issues and policy director; Jack Watson, who is handling plans for a transition into the Carter administration; Landon Butler, political director; and Dick Moe, administrative assistant to Sen. Walter F. Mondale, his running mate.

Earlier in the day, Carter visited his sister, Gloria Spann, who lives near Plains. He also stopped by the Carter family's peanut warehouse and finished reading books on Lyndon B. Johnson and Hubert H. Humphrey.

While Carter worked at home, Rosalynn Carter did some grocery shopping and caused a traffic jam when she drove downtown in an electric golf cart with her daughter, Amy, 8, and two young friends.

The change in Plains, population 683 and with a one-block-long main street, has been drastic, even in the last few weeks.

By mid-morning Monday, cars lined both sides of Main Street and spilled over into side streets.

"I guess it is just something you have to accept," Mrs. Carter said of the changes.

One of the tourists who greeted Mrs. Carter was Willa Mae Walker of Pasadena, Calif., a sister of black baseball pioneer Jackie Robinson, who had been to a family reunion in Jacksonville, Fla.

Mrs. Carter stopped by the old train depot and picked up two stacks of books that had been sent to her husband.

"I thought I would take them home and let Jimmy look at them," she said. The books included "Rebels Under Sail," by Fowler, "None Dare Call it Conspiracy" by Allen and "The Honey Badger" by Ruark.

Police link bitter feud to Detroit arson deaths

DETROIT (UPI) — A long and bitter feud involving neighbors and other acquaintances probably motivated an arsonist to start a fire in a southwest side home that killed six persons, police said Monday.

Investigators were questioning nine adults in the city's worst arson case in history. Most of those questioned were listed in previous police reports on disturbances involving the family of Mary Broome, 46, who lost four children and two grandchildren in the flash fire Sunday.

Mrs. Broome was in serious condition at Detroit General Hospital. One of her sons, Edward Broome, 22, the father of the grandchildren, also was in serious condition in the burns unit at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Broome was injured trying repeatedly to save the children trapped inside the blazing two-story frame and stone house. Mrs. Broome jumped through a window to escape the fire.

Killed were four of Mrs. Broome's sons — Kenneth, 20, David, 14, Tommy, 13, and Richard, 9 — and Edward Broome's sons, Eddie, 4, and Michael, 3.

Broome's wife and daughter, Mrs. Broome's three daughters and a boyfriend of one of the girls escaped serious injury.

Most of the dead were trapped in an upstairs rear bedroom that was the first part of the house destroyed by the fire. All that was left Monday were the exterior walls of the structure.

Two Olympic golds for U.S. swimmers

MONTREAL (UPI) — University of California teammates John Naber and Bruce Furniss set world records in winning gold medals at the Olympic swimming competition Monday night, and Romania's incredible Nadia Comaneci performed two more perfect 10.0 routines in gymnastics.

Naber, who makes his home in Menlo Park, Calif., won the gold medal in the 100-meter backstroke in the world-record time of 55.49 seconds, while Furniss, whose home is in Long Beach, Calif., won the 200-meter freestyle in the world-record time of 1:50.29 with Naber and Jim Montgomery of Madison, Wis., third.

Naber said he passed the pain thresh old three tims en route to his gold-medal victory and could not have swum any faster. Furniss said he was not surprised by his winning time and more than likely can do better.

Naber swam in the two events with only a 40-minute rest but said that fact had no effect on his finishing second in the 200-meter freestyle.

"I've been doubling a lot," he said. "In fact, I swam in 12 races at the NCAA championships, so I am accustomed to a lot of action in a short period of time."

Naber said the Americans swept the 200-meter freestyle, as he had predicted, because of their outstanding team spirit.

"We're not John, Bruce and Jim," he said. "We're the U.S.A."

Naber added he had one year remaining on his commitment at Southern California, then he might do something else.

"I'm not saying I will quit in a year," he said, "but don't be surprised if I do."

Furniss also talked about the spirit on the men's team, which has won eight of the nine medals thus far.

"Of course, I'm pretty excited about winning a gold medal," said Furniss. "There's a long way to go yet, and I think we'll surprise some people with some of our performances."

John Hencken first equalled and then shattered his own world record in advancing to Tuesday night's final of the 100-meter breaststroke.

There was little else for the Americans to cheer about, however, as East Germany's 17-year-old wunderkind, Kornelia Ender, made off with her second world record and became the Games' first double winner, the U. S. girls failed to get a medal in two swimming finals, and the Americans were beaten in the first women's basketball game ever played in the Olympics.

Comaneci performed two unprecedented perfect 10.0 routines — for three in two days — Monday to overshadow a winning performance by the heavily-favored Soviet women gymnasts who took the team championship gold medal.

In whirling through perfect exercises on both the balance beam and the uneven parallel bars, Comaneci also inherited the popularity title from Russia's Olga Korbut, who had a disastrous night by comparison.

It was the first competition ever between Nadia and Korbut, the darling of the 1972 Munich Games, and it was clear from the onset the 86-pound Romanian school girl had captured the hearts of the 16,000 sellout crowd.

At least three times during the night both Nadia and Olga were performing simultaneously in different events and each time the crowd would applaud Olga's finish, but hold its real enthusiasm for Nadia.

RECORD-PLOWING U. S. swimmer John Hencken glides through the water on his way to a new world record of 1:03.62 in the men's 100-metre breaststroke semifinals in Montreal Monday.

Olympians have herculean hunger

For those who wake up extra hungry in the morning, Roger Gagnon can scramble 28,800 eggs, fry up 2,500 pounds of bacon and ham and pour 3,000 gallons of milk.

He does it every day.

At least he and his staff have been doing it each day since the 10,000 or so athletes moved into the Olympic Village in Montreal and they will do it every day until the competitors go home.

Gagnon is manager of food services at the Village, a fairly bland title for an immense job.

"We have been working on one phase or another of this operation for two years," said Gagnon, a rotund gentleman who seems to have been sampling a great deal of his staff's cooking.

"The dining rooms take up as much space as six football fields. We can feed 4,000 athletes at one time."

Five separate menus are rotated and by the time the Olympics are over more than 100,000 pounds of hamburger meat, 300,000 pounds of fresh vegetables and 200,000 pounds of potatoes will be served as part of almost one million meals.

Cooks at the Olympic Village restaurant cannot please everyone and Dominique Mbango is one man who misses his home cooking.

"I suppose the food is okay but I miss the elephant and wild boar meat we have at home, and the peanuts too," said Mbango, trainer of the eight-member Congolese team.

Dwight Stones, 1972 high jump bronze medal-winner, cannot concentrate in the atmosphere of the Olympic Village, so he is going home — to Huntington Beach, Calif. — until five days before his competition comes up July 30.

Leaving for a different reason — he got caught cheating — is Boris Onischenko of the Soviet Union's pentathlon team. The 1972 silver medalist had a bugging device in his epee Monday.

The Russian, a big favorite to win the gold medal, had his fencing sword wired so he could score hits with it without actually making contact with his opponent.

Making contact with the end of their beds has been the problem of many Olympic basketball players.

Getting left out in the cold has been the problem of many Olympic basketball players. It seems that all the beds in Olympic village are the same length, leaving some portion of the 6-foot-6-inch plus players hanging out from under their blankets.

Per head of population, Monaco has the largest contingent at the Olympics. Its 10 athletes from a population of 25,000 equals a team of 100,000 for a country the size of the United States.

Yankees beat Sox in ninth, 3-2

by BOB GALLAS

An error in the top of the ninth by White Sox second baseman Jack Brohamer gave the New York Yankees a 3-2 win over the Sox at a wet Comiskey Park Monday night.

The Yankees got the run when Thurman Munson opened the ninth with a double off reliever Dave Hamilton. Chris Chambliss tried to bunt Munson to third, but Brohamer's wide throw to Hamilton covering first allowed Munson to come all the way home to give Yankee starter Ed Figueroa his 12th win.

The win was the Yankee's 10th in 11 games against the Sox this season. The two teams conclude regular season competition with a single game tonight.

The final appearance of the Bronx Bombers in Chicago this season pitted Sox southpaw Terry Forster (1-6) against Ed Figueroa (11-6) who was seeking to tie Jim Palmer of Baltimore for the American League lead in victories with 12.

Forster, making his first start since July 3, gave up a run in the third when the Yankees carried out the hit-and-run to perfection. Sandy Alomar singled to lead off, then went to second on a sacrifice bunt. Alomar scored moments later on Mickey Rivers' single to center on the hit-and-run.

But the Sox came right back in the bottom of the frame with a pair of runs on four hits. Jim Spencer led off with a bunt single and eventually scored on a single by Sox rookie Kevin Bell.

Pat Kelly had preceded Bell with a single and went to third on Bell's RBI hit. Kelly scored on a sacrifice fly by yet another rookie, Wayne Nordhagen, who started the game in right field.

After giving up the third-inning run, Forster retired the next 11 Yankees in order before Chris Chambliss singled with one out in the seventh. Chambliss scored on Juan Bernhardt's double that tied the score.

Forster's last appearance before Monday was also against the Yankees 10 days ago when he gave up a run in 7-2/3 innings in relief.

The Sox stranded two runners on base in each of the first three innings as they failed to take advantage of opportunity. The Yankees came into Chicago with a 9-1 series edge over Veeck's Wrecks this season.

Things got off to a late and wet start, one hour and 25 minutes late thanks to rain, which continued to fall lightly off and on during the contest but didn't force any further delay.

Jorge Orta, who leads the club in RBIs, doubles, triples, home runs, hits, runs scored and sacrifices, has been named the American League's "Player of the Week."

Orta hit .556 last week with 10 hits in 18 trips. The Sox leftfielder singled his first time up to extend his hitting streak to 16 games, the longest hit streak by a Sox player since 1967 when Ken Berry hit safely in 20 straight games.

Bats betray Bonham as Cubs fall, 3-2

From The Herald wire services

Dave Winfield tripled in the bottom of the eighth inning and scored on John Grubb's sacrifice fly to send the San Diego Padres to a 3-2 win over the Chicago Cubs Monday.

Brent Strom went the route for the Padres, scattering seven hits and running his record to 7-5.

Bill Bonham absorbed his eighth loss of the season despite pitching his best game in several starts.

He allowed eight hits and struck out five but was betrayed by the lack of an offense.

The Cubs settled for one run in the first inning when they had the bases loaded with nobody out.

Rick Monday opened the inning reaching on an error and was followed with singles by Jose Cardenal and Manny Trillo.

Jerry Morales pushed Monday home with the Cubs' first run but his grounder turned into a double play and snuffed the potential big inning.

The Cubs turned in another run in the top of the eighth inning.

Monday opened with a single and advanced to second on Cardenal's base hit.

Trillo sacrificed the runners to second and third and Monday scored on Wayne Tyrone's sacrifice fly, the rookies first major league RBI.

Back to back singles by Willie Davis and Winfield, led to the Padres first run in the fourth inning.

The Cubs loss was their seventh in succession.

Legion play starts today

The 9th District American Legion baseball tournament is scheduled to open tonight with Tattler (0-9) playing Park Ridge (5-6) in a best-of-three series.

The winner will play Logan Square (6-4) over the weekend and the winner of that series will play Arlington (10-2) starting next Tuesday.

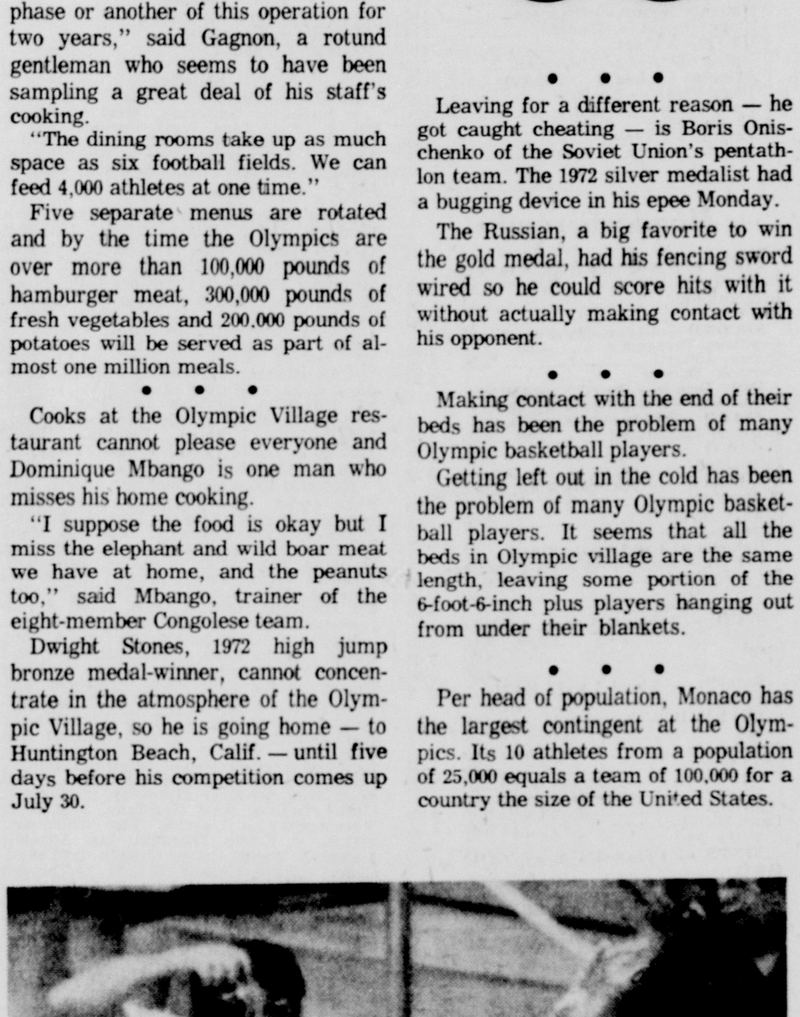

Arlington won two doubleheaders last weekend by big margins. Saturday, they defeated Magnolia 9-2 and 11-4. Todd Walker and Kevin Huber got the wins.

Then they beat Pekin 16-2 and 6-1 Sunday. Bob Huber allowed only five hits in the opener for the win while Doug Harth won the second in relief. Brett Frase was the leading Arlington hitter over the weekend with eight hits in 15 at bats, including a home run.

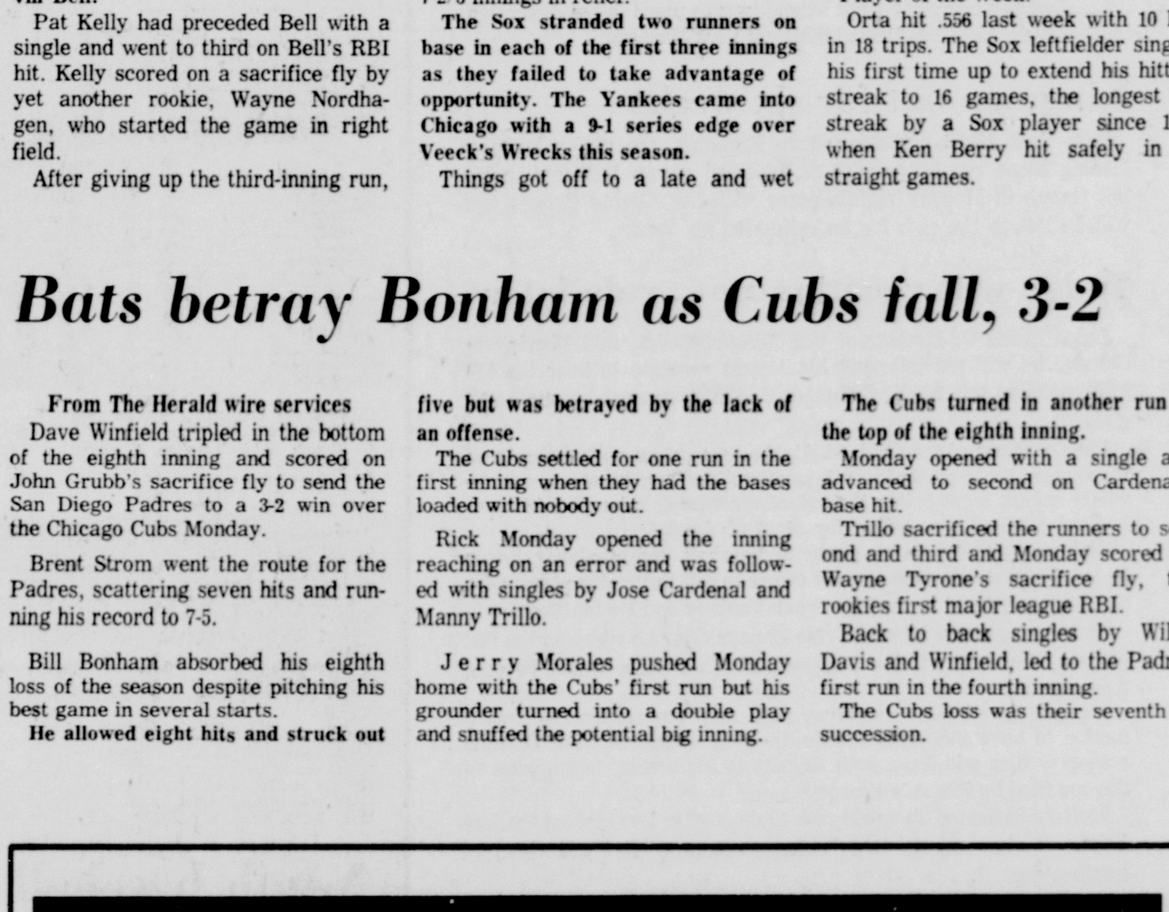

Swimmers to wed

MONTREAL (UPI) — Kornelia Ender of East Germany, who holds or shares 10 world swimming records, says she is planning to marry her teammate Roland Matthes, holder of the world 100 meter backstroke record, after the Olympics are over. She said they have not decided whether to give up competition or not.

American record holder Shirley Babashoff, asked whether she had any plans, said: "My only love is swimming."

JAPAN'S DEFENSE is deadly as Gail Marquis of the United States finds out in Monday's Olympic contest in Montreal. The Japanese gave the U.S. its first loss in its first game ever, 84-71.

Darrell Johnson out as Boston manager

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox, a team in upheaval since it almost won the 1975 World Series, announced Monday it has fired manager Darrell Johnson.

Johnson was voted Manager of the Year last season and was the American League's coach in this year's All-Star game against the National League.

The team announced in Dallas that tobacco-chewing third base coach Don Zimmer will take over for the remainder of the season.

"We know the ball club has not performed to its capabilities this year. Therefore, a change at this time, we hope, will make for improvement, and that the team, as a whole, will play better," said Red Sox General Manager Dick O'Connell.

Johnson, 49, was fired one day after the Red Sox lost five out of six games to the Kansas City Royals following the All-Star break. The nose-dive left Boston, with a 41-45 season mark, mired in fifth place in the AL East, 13 games behind first-place New York.

O'Connell said Johnson will remain with the team as a scout.

Johnson's firing comes 10 days after the death of the team's popular owner Tom Yawkey.

"We cannot blame everything on Darrell Johnson, but it's easier to change managers than the whole team, which would be practically impossible," O'Connell said.

O'Connell was en route to Dallas when the announcement was made by traveling secretary Jack Rogers.

"Darrell did a great job managing the team last year, and we are sorry this decision had to be made. He will remain with the Red Sox organization as a scout," O'Connell said.

Johnson succeeded Eddie Kasko as manager of the Red Sox before the 1974 season and directed the club to a third place finish that year in the American League East with an 84-78 record.

Last season Johnson was voted "Manager of the Year" by Sporting News when he directed the Red Sox to the American League pennant.

'Can't blame owners'

DALLAS — Darrell Johnson said Monday he did not blame the Boston Red Sox ownership for firing him as manager and that his dismissal might be the best thing for the slump-mired defending American League champion.

"We (the Red Sox) were going absolutely nowhere," Johnson said. "The way the season was going, well, then, any change couldn't hurt."

"I don't blame the Red Sox at all (for my firing)," he said. "They felt that a change was needed to shake up the team. They felt that changing the manager might do it. They might be right."

Johnson, who flew to Texas with the Red Sox Sunday night for a two-game series with the Texas Rangers, said he was notified of his dismissal about 10:30 a.m. Monday. He said he had not had earlier indications that his job was in jeopardy.

"Actually, I don't think about those things. I had a job to do and I don't have time to think about whether there is a chance I might be fired," he said.

"But again, I don't blame the Red Sox at all. We had not been playing well. We were not playing up to our potential. We had the same personnel that we went to the World Series with last season and they weren't playing the game they way they should."

"I don't know the reason. They just weren't playing well."

The Red Sox currently were lodged in fifth place in the American League East, 13 games behind the New York Yankees.

Kingman out for six weeks

New York Mets' outfielder Dave Kingman, the major leagues' leading home run hitter with 32, suffered a torn ligament in his left thumb in Monday night's game with the Atlanta Braves and will be lost to the club for an estimated six weeks.

Judge will vacation now, rule later

Judge Frank J. McGarr of U.S. District Court, said Monday in Chicago he will not interrupt his August vacation to hear the $10 million dollar suit filed by Charles O. Finley against baseball officials.

Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, had sought an early hearing on his request for a preliminary injunction. McGarr, however, said he would accept legal briefs instead of conducting a hearing because he had planned a vacation for most of August.

Finley's suit was in response to baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn's refusal to permit the A's owner to sell three star players for $3.5 million offered by the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox.

McGarr indicated he would rule 10 days after he received the last players, Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue, would become free agents.

McGarr gave Finley's attorney until Aug. 6 to respond to Kuhn's motion to have the judge decide the case without a trial. Defense attorneys then will have until Aug. 16 to file a brief in response to the one filed by Finley's attorneys.

McGarr indicated he would rule 10 days after he received the last brief. If he rejects the defense motion, he will hold a hearing Sept. 7.

Baseball owners approve contract

NEW YORK — Major league baseball owners have approved a four-year contract with the Players' Association, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office announced Monday.

"The clubs have approved and ratified the recommendation of the Player Relations Committee for acceptance of the agreements worked out in negotiation with the players," said a spokesman for the Commissioner. "There were 17 votes for approval, including a majority in each league."

He said that did not indicate there were seven negative votes, but rather that "the others were largely of the viewpoint they would like to have further meeting, negotiations and clarifications."

The owners had been expected to ratify the agreement last Wednesay, one day after the Players Association had agreed, but then, nesday, one day after the Players Association had agreed, but then, saying he expected that agreement could be announced Monday.

Under the agreement, announced July 12, the players would bind themselves to their teams for six years, plus a one-year option. The owners agreed to increase the pension fund from $6.85 million to $8.3 million, and to increase the annual minimum salary to $18,000 for the first year of the pact (from $17,000) and to raise it $1,000 per year for each of the remaining three years of the new contract.

Steelers heat up for All-Star game

LATROBE, Pa. — The Pittsburgh Steelers emphasized special teams Monday as they began concentrating on Friday night's game with the College All-Stars.

Coach Chuck Noll devoted the entire morning session to the kicking game and split the two-hour drill between the punting and field goal teams. Veteran Bobby Walden and rookie Barry Burton did the punting and veteran Roy Gerala was the only place kicker.

Veterans Gerry Mullins, Gordon Gravelle and Jim Allen and rookie Allen Hooker returned to practice Monday after recovering from minor injuries suffered during the first week of training camp.

Veteran receivers John Stallworth and Reggie Garrett were still sidelined, which means the Steelers' rookie receivers wil lsee more than token action Friday night.

Sheridan leads sweep of Naperville

The Northwest Rebels, sponsored by Jake's Pub in Schaumburg, swept a doubleheader from Naperville over the weekend and headed into the stretch run of the Greater Illinois Baseball League season with a 21-2 record.

The Rebels kept a lock on the league lead with a pair of crushing wins over Naperville.

Dean Sheridan improved his batting average 50 points and drove in seven runs with a 6-for-8 afternoon.

Willie Kozel, who ran his record to 5-0 with six innings of work in the first game, was aided by Sheridan's four hits in four at bats as the Rebels triumphed 11-3.

Sheridan pushed home the Rebels' first run in the first inning when he doubled home Ron DeBolt, who had reached on a fielders' choice.

Bruce Hanson tripled in the second and John Theriault hit a sacrifice fly in the third that both scored runs.

Sheridan singled with the bases loaded for two more runs in the fourth before the Rebels exploded for six runs in the fifth inning to put the game away.

Kozel fanned nine in his six innings of work, allowing only four hits, before being relieved by Tom Good.

Al Schuette took another chunk out of his team leading ERA as he pitched five innings of shutout ball in the second game.

The Rebels struck for seven innings early and held on for a 7-2 win as Schuette pumped his record to 5-0 and deflated his ERA to 0.85.

The Rebels got on the board in the third inning when Bill Maffy and Mike Quade opened with walks.

Ron DeBolt, who was on his way to a 4-for-4 day, then singled to score Maffy and Sheridan followed with a double that sent Quade home.

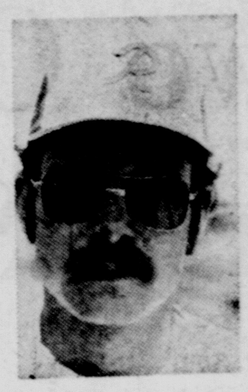

Good and Hanson opened the fourth inning with back to back singles and Scott Day loaded the bases when he legged out an infield hit.

Quade then drove home a run with a sacrifice fly and DeBolt cleaned the bases with a three-run homer.

Sheridan followed DeBolt to the plate and closed out his day with a solo home run.

DeBolt's eruption in the second game raised his average 54 points to .304 while Sheridan finished the day hitting .338.

The Rebels travel to Gary Saturday for their showdown doubleheader with the Steel City Giants then move back into the area Sunday with a twinbill against Park Ridge at Maine South High School at 12:30 p.m.

'Lifer' Art Sagel looks out from second story of scoreboard high above Wrigley Field.

They play numbers game

by DON FRISKE

The simple splendor of the Wrigley Field scoreboard comes to life when the vines that cover the outfield walls and the fans that cover the bleacher seats have grown to full proportion.

But there is a paradox of sorts that is quickly felt when one climbs the nine-stepped steel ladder leading into one of the few manual scoreboards left in baseball.

To Alex Manolis and Art Sagel it is a monster on hot summer afternoons, one that breathes in fire rather than coughing it out.

"Wow! It is hot," says Manolis, who has worked in the scoreboard the past 14 years. "I enjoy the spring days."

Manolis has a small electrical fan that quietly whirs behind him as he sits looking down on the playing field while waiting for the Western Union ticker tape machine to type out results from other major league games.

As he says, the fan is merely makeshift, hardly adequate enough to cool the insides of the massive, three-story scoreboard.

It was quite a different story when Manolis used to work the board during Chicago Bears games when they played at Wrigley Field. Then he had the problem of keeping warm, until he built a little enclosure with a gas heater.

Manolis and his partner Sagel, in his third year as a scoreboard worker, admit that Cubs games during the week days are a pleasure compared to the weekends.

With most of the teams in the majors playing night games during the week, there isn't much activity in the scoreboard Lights at Wrigley Field could mark the end of Manolis' and Sagel's stay in the board.

"I figure the week days more or less make up for what we have to do on weekends." Manolis said. "By the same token, I'm getting paid for it. You have to take the good with the bad. That's exactly what it is."

Sagel agrees.

"We have to be going all the time on the weekends," he said. "You better believe it makes up for the week days."

If the wind is coming out of the southwest, the breeze works its way into the board.

"You couldn't ask for anything better when the wind is coming out of the southwest," Sagel said. "It's a steel box. The wind has to be coming out of the southwest or you cook in there."

Manolis and Sagel work the two upper levels of the board. Roger Conners works the lower level. No matter how many games are being played, the same three work the board.

They also have chores on the field. Sagel and Conners rotate jobs involving upkeep of the dirt portions of the field such as the pitcher's mound, the plate and the warmup mounds.

Manolis has been a Wrigley Field groundskeeper for 23 years, Sagel for 18.

"I'm what you'd call a 'lifer.' I've seen many come and many go," Sagel said.

In the scoreboard, Manolis keeps a chart of every game on the board on any particular day. About 20 minutes before game time, he gets a call on the battery-operated telephone from someone in the press box who gives him the umpires.

He then climbs to the third level to fill in the umpire numbers. A quick glance toward the bullpens gives him the uniform numbers of the starting pitchers and he fills in the appropriate information.

Each floor of the scoreboard has four games on it. Behind every box is a zero because it is most common. The other numbers lie in stacks on the floor.

Manolis, Sagel and Conners take care of everything except the electronic portion of the board that includes the batter, strikes, balls and outs.

That is the job of Leonard Wheeler, who sits in the press box. Since 1970, he has been punching in the numbers on the small metal box.

From a distance, it looks like the numbers are put together by small lights, but they are steel targets. Manolis explains.

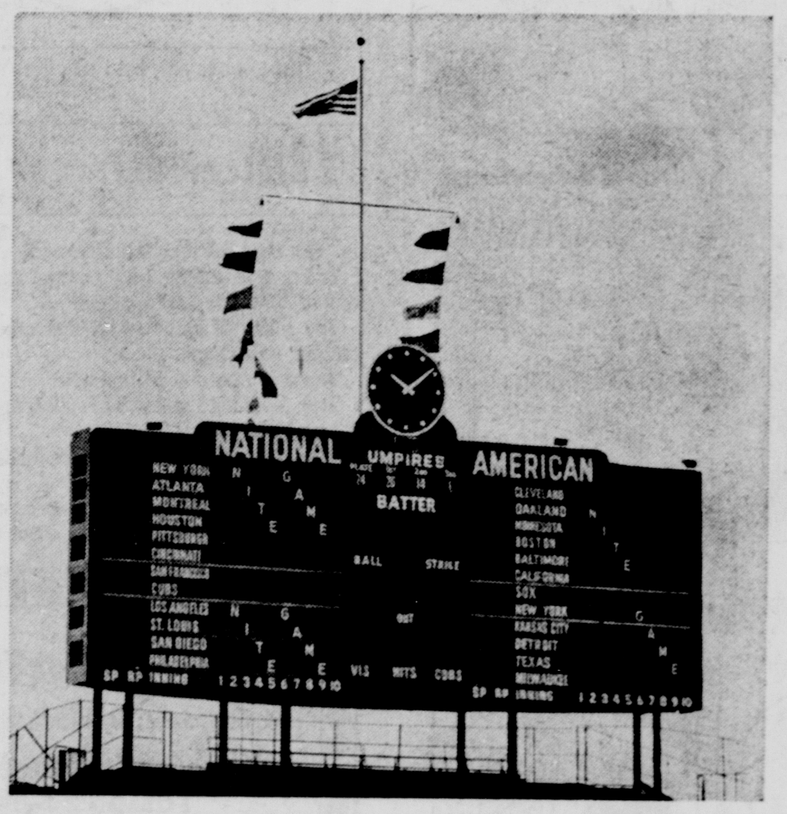

"Picture a tennis ball cut in half. They are activated by a cable that runs underneath the infield and up through the press coop. The box in the press coop activiates the bullets, which slide up to designate numbers."

Manolis also said the scoreboard is as big as he can imagine it will ever be. With talk of another expansion in the majors, Manolis is wondering what will happen if that comes about.

The last expansion was in 1969 when iron workers added to the bottom of the board to accommodate the new teams. But Manolis said there will be no major change in the board again.

"We keep a fairly good scoreboard," Manolis said. "People say it is the best in both leagues mostly because the fans can see it better."

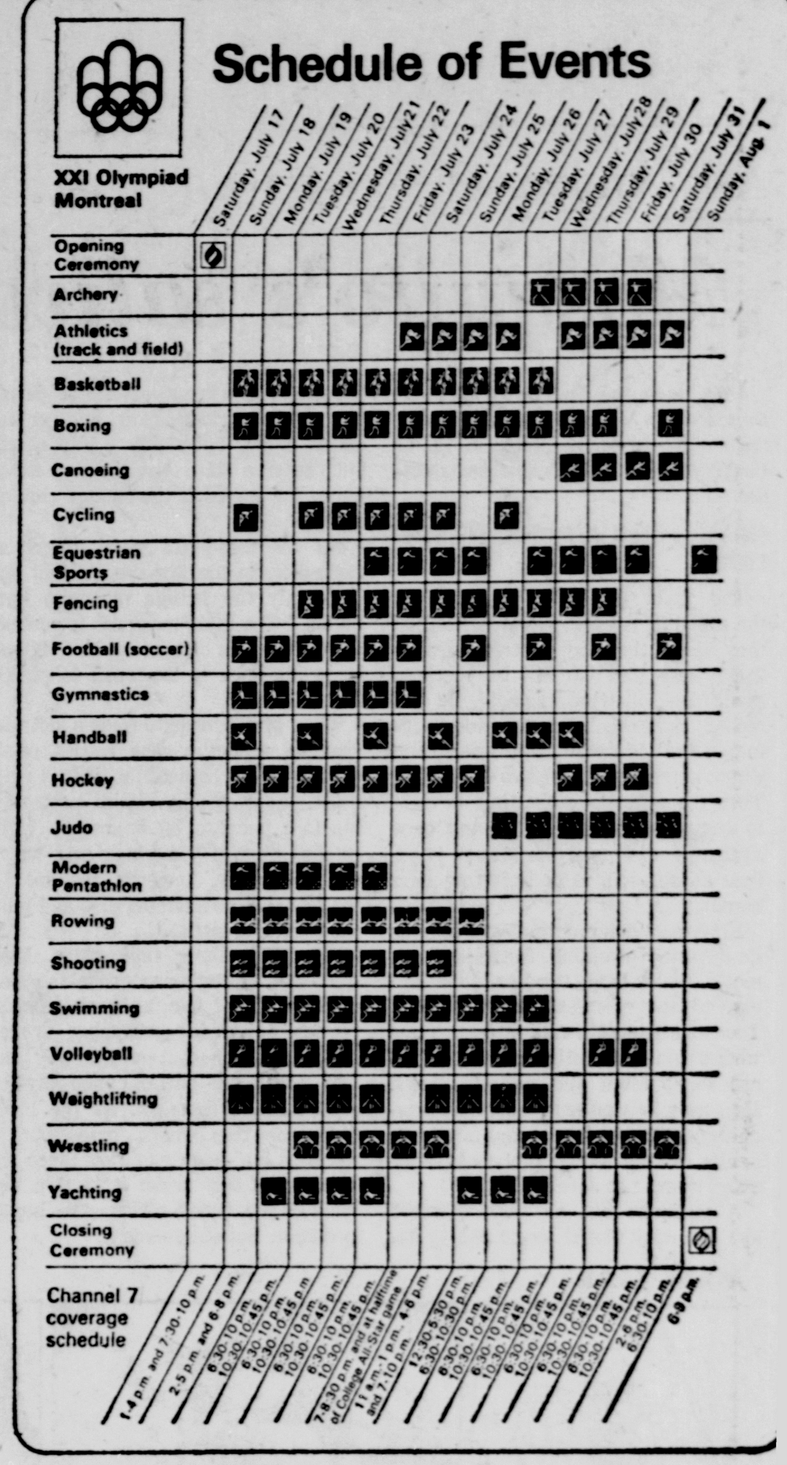

The Wrigley Field scoreboard is nothing fancy, but that's part of what makes it special.

Everything is plain to see for the fans.

Zeroes are most common so they remain behind each box.

Women lose 1st basketball game

MONTREAL (UPI) — It took the American men 36 years to lose their first Olympic basketball game. It took the American women just one day.

The women's basketball competition made its Olympic debut Monday when the United States met Japan, and, although Lucy Harris scored the first ever female basket to give the Americans a 2-0 lead, Japan stole the show. The bombardment from around the court, especially the free throw line by Keiko Namai, gave Japan an 84-71 triumph.

"We came here with the idea we could compete for the gold medal," said American Coach Billie Moore. "We're not going to change our plans now. That does put us in the hole, though, because we can't lose another game."

Namai scored 35 points and looked like a veteran of the Atlantic Coast Conference in the way she fell all over the court to draw fouls. She hit 19 of 20 free throws to help the Japanese outscore the Americans from the line, 26-11.

The Japanese acting did not catch Moore by surprise, but she was irritated because the smaller but quicker foes were able to get away with it.

"We knew all about it," explained Moore. "I'm just sorry the officials didn't. Give the Japanese credit; they used every technique, and it worked. The people at fault were the officials."

The two game officials were from Holland and Italy.

Japan opened a 10-point lead in the first half, 32-22, before Moore installed a 1-3-1 zone that cut the advantage to 44-40 with three minutes remaining in the half. But free throws enabled Japan to take a 49-42 lead by intermission as it scored nine of its last 11 points from the line.

The Americans eventually took th lead four minutes into the second hal but the United States then turned th ball over four straight times in failin to build up a cushion. The America went almost five minutes before sco ing another point, and that dry spe enabled the Japanese to mount a 62- lead.

The Americans never drew clos than three points, and were hurt wh Ann Meyers, the sister of Milwauk Bucks forward Dave Meyers, foul out with 7:32 left.

Meyers took command of the Ame ican offense by scoring eight points the second half before departing. finished with 14 as did teammate P Roberts, while Harris topped t United States with 17.

"Three years ago, if there were or 15 teams in a tournament, we'd seeded 14th or 15th," Moore sai "What has happened this year is evidence of the growth of women athletics throughout the Unit States."

The Americans, who won fi straight matches at a pre-Olymp tournament last month to qualify f the games take on Bulgaria Tuesda and the U.S. men meet Puerto Rico.

Mosquito's saliva makes bite itch

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Isabel Verzosa, 10, of Langley, B.C., Canada, for her question:

WHAT MAKES A MOSQUITO BITE ITCH?

The pesky mosquitos depart from the scene in the fall. However, before they leave they lay enough eggs to make sure that we will be pestered again the following summer. In the colder northern climates the eggs may remain dormant until late spring when warm weather gives its signal. Then the eggs know the time is right to complete the life cycle and once again descend upon the human populace as nature's most irritating buzz bombs.

Each particular animal species has its own way of eating. Butterflies and moths have long tongues that are used to sip sweet nectar from flowers. The snakes just swallow their meal whole, while the mighty meat-eaters use sharp teeth and powerful jaws. Man uses knives and forks. The mosquito carries her knives and forks in a handy tool kit — the proboscis — located where her nose should be.

A mosquito has no teeth. Even if she did, they would be no use to her because she cannot open her jaws. She is a born bloodsucker, and her so-called bite is not really a bite at all but rather a stab. And the tiny itchy bump she leaves is the telltale clue of her visit.

Not all mosquitos need blood in their diet. In the few species that do, it is only the female mosquito that "bites." The male mosquito is content with the juices of tender plant tissues since his beak is too weak to pierce skin.

When Mrs. Mosquito finds a suitable spot on a victim, she settles down ever-so-softly. Sometimes, if it is very quiet, the would-be victim postpones his fate because he hears the high-pitched buzz of her wings as a warning. Generally, however, we are all too busy with something else and miss the revealing signal.

AT THE dinner table, Mrs. Mosquito gently begins to probe the skin with the tip of her proboscis. As she pushes down, the wrapping around her beak slides out of the way and lets needlelike parts, called stylets, stab through the skin. As the blood from the tiny wound oozes out, it thickens and begins to clot. Since she can sip it only when it is thin and runny, you would think she has a problem. But she solves it.

When she stabs in her stylets, saliva flows into the wound. Her saliva contains a chemical substance that stops the blood from clotting. She can then take her time to dine leisurely and fly away when she is full. The trouble is her saliva causes a reaction that we see and feel as an itchy red bump. This bump is caused not by the wound or the loss of blood but by the anti-blood-clotting chemicals in the mosquito's saliva.

There are about 2,500 different kinds of mosquitos and, happily, only a few of these feed on human blood. The discomfort of the wound is nothing compared to the diseases that can result from it.

In many parts of the world yellow fever, malaria and encephalitis re diseases transmitted by the mosquito, a superpest if there ever was one.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Brenda Firobin, 13, of Ottawa, Ont., Canada, for her question:

IS THE BEAVER A PEST OR A FRIEND OF MANKIND?

The tireless and ingenious activity of the beaver occasionally has caused men to be much less than pleased. When the busy animal transforms small streams into lakes, sometimes the water overflows and floods acres of ground. Lumbermen, farmers, and even trout fishermen may resent this sharp reduction of fast-flowing water.

But, in fact, the beaver is quite an effective conservationist. By building his dams he helps rejuvenate forests, maintain the water table and prevent serious flooding. These are all activities helpful to man's long-range interests. What's more, soil conservationists have even dropped beavers by parachute into areas that might benefit by their presence.

American Composer night at Ravinia disappointing

by DAVE IBATA

Mid-week review

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra waxed mediocre at Ravinia's American Composers Concert Sunday night.

The program: Bernstein's Overture to "Candide"; Ives' "The Unanswered Question"; Copland's "Suite from the Ballet, 'Appalachian Spring' "; and Barber's Piano Concerto, Opus 38. The overall result: bland.

Even warhorses such as the "Candide" overture and Copland's "Appalachian Spring" deserve a little loving care. But the CSO under James Levine literally ran through these pieces with little more concern than a student practicing chromatic exercises.

"CANDIDE" DEMANDS bright, responsive playing. The conductor's baton must be a foil, not a broadsword. Yet the orchestra gave this piece an interpretation more fitting of Mahler — top-heavy with brass and bass, lumbering rather than lilting.

Likewise with "Appalachian Spring." The CSO groped through the slower, more delicate sections of the piece, and thundered effectively through the fiery portions. In the slower movements, as if to add insult to injury, Levine had the orchestra play too fast, as though speed compensated for uncertainty.

The winds faltered, the lower brass and strings often seemed to overwhelm them, and one had cause to sit on the edge of one's chair breathlessly waiting for the ensemble to get its act together.

ONLY IN THE final scene did the orchestra subdue itself sufficiently to allow the simple, delicate emotional power of the work to shine through.

The orchestra did better with Ives' work. Here only four flutists remained on stage, while strings played moodily and a trumpet wailed mournfully backstage. Ives' "Qeustion" is a short, enigmatic work that starts and ends nowhere. The CSO's interpretation left the audience thoroughly baffled, which means the ensemble achieved the composer's intent.

The best moments of the night came during the performance of Barber's concerto, magnificently played by John Browning pianist.

BROWNING AND the CSO confidently led the audience on a grand tour of contrasts during the concerto's first movement. Thoughtful is the word describing Browning's playing; he seemed to carefully weight each note before setting it down on the keyboard, and the orchestra matched his precision.

The lyrical middle movement of the concerto provided a forum for Browning's deft, nearly perfect phrasing.

An agitated, convulsive final section closes the piece. Here the orchestra and pianist play on each others' harmonies in a series of dissonant crescendoes building up to a brilliant close. And Browning played brilliantly.

Pity so fine a performance is tagged at the end of an otherwise disappointing concert.

Talking often beats play

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The American Bridge Teachers' Association quarterly always contains some interesting and instructive hands. Here is one by Dave Smith.

Forget about the bidding. North's two-spade response is a tremendous overbid and while six clubs is unbeatable, it got declarer to six notrump.

Dave used the hand to illustrate a point we have made many times in this column. The less you talk about your hand, the better.

When dummy hit the table East remarked "I should have doubled." Then East took his ace of hearts and returned the queen, which South won.

South trusted East. His normal play would have been to take the diamond finesse and go one down. Instead he cashed dummy's ace of diamonds and ran off seven clubs to wind up holding one spade and the queen-jack of diamonds while dummy held ace-king-10 of spades. East was unmercifully squeezed. He had to chuck his king of diamonds or unguard his queen-jack of spades.

Dave points out also that East could have insured defeat of the contract by playing his queen of spades at trick two, but he was too busy talking.

THE WILLIAMSBURG WING.

A place of pride for those in need of nursing care.

When Americana created the Williamsburg Wing, they did it to add a further dimension to health care: elegance.

The Williamsburg Wing is so beautiful it's hard to believe it's in a health care center. But it is. It's special, even spectacular, but it is unquestionably a part of a health care center.

In the Williamsburg Wing, patients receive fine food served in a private dining room. Each room is magnificently decorated and furnished. The sitting room is pleasantly opulent. All over, the atmosphere is quietly, devotedly luxurious.

THE WILLIAMSBURG WING—for people who are accustomed to more. The Williamsburg Wing is not for everyone. It is for those with an appreciation of more tasteful living. It provides the best of two worlds—privacy, elegance and the special services of its staff—and the ready availability of the professional and therapeutic services of the adjoining Americana Healthcare Center.

Call us for an appointment to visit and inspect our accommodations, services and professional staff.

Encephalitis tests start on birds, mosquitos

The head of the state's encephalitis warning team, Dr. Gary Clark, has begun testing birds and mosquitos in Cook County for signs of the disease.

The Illinois Dept. of Public Health July 6 issued a "preliminary alert" when St. Louis encephalitis antibodies were detected in blood samples taken from three juvenile birds in Southern Illinois.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the state health department, urged communities to increase mosquito abatement efforts and also asked Illinois residents to eliminate mosquito breeding places such as standing water in ditches, bird baths and garbage cans.

So far there have not been any encephalitis cases reported this year. But last year, Illinois reported 596 confirmed and probable cases, 332 in the six-county Chicago area and at least 11 in the Northwest suburbs.

The disease last year killed 21 persons in the state.

A spokesman for the state health department said the encephalitis early warning team has now moved into Cook County. The scientists collect mosquitos and bird blood samples to test for the presence of encephalitis.

The Cook County sampling will be concentrated in the southern part of the county, the spokesman said. Last year, many more encephalitis cases were reported in the southern half of Cook County than in the northern half.

Health officials cannot explain fully the appearance and disappearance of encephalitis and do not know why last year there were 10 times as many encephalitis cases in Illinois than ever before.

Top Dems to aid Mikva campaign

If scheduling plans hold up, U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, may have three of the Democratic Party's most prominent figures campainging for him in the next month.

Mikva aides confirmed that U.S. Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., will appear at a series of functions on July 31. Udall ran an unsuccessful presidential primary campaign, but is considered one of the leading liberals in the U.S. House.

U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., is scheduled to appear at another fund-raising event Aug. 6. The details of the Humphrey appearance have not been completed.

Mikva aides also are hoping that U.S. Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., who was nominated last week as the party's vice presidential candidate, will be able to keep an Aug. 28 appearance that was planned before he received the nod as Jimmy Carter's running mate.

Mondale is scheduled to address a rally for Mikva campaign workers that day.

6 seek national posts

Six 10th of 12th Congressional District residents have been nominated to run for nine Illinois seats on the Democratic National Committee.

The group includes Lucille Gallagher and Gwen Martin of Arlington Heights, State Rep. Daniel M. Pierce of Highland Park, the state Democratic Central Committeeman for the 12th Congressional District, Calvin Sutker of Niles, Stanton Brody of Glencoe and University of Illinois Trustee Nina Shepherd of Winnekta.

The Democratic Illinois Central Committee will select nine persons from the 54 persons who have been nominated.

John P. Touhy, state Democratic chairman, said the election will be made Wednesday at a meeting in Springfield.

2 officials urged to step down

A Republican candidate for the Metropolitan Sanitary District Board has called on the two district commissioners under federal indictment to step aside until their cases are resolved.

William F. Griffith of Arlington Heights said the indictments have "cast a cloud of suspicion over the MSD." Comr. Valentine Janicki and Comr. Chester Majewski, along with six other persons, including the MSD general superintendent, have been indicted in an alleged $1.2 million bribery scheme. Both Janicki and Majewski are Democrats.

Griffith said the two commissioners "should consider all of the consequences these indictments will have on the board and on the taxpaying public. I only hope they will decide to do what is in the best interests of the MSD."

Dem 'race night' July 28

The Maine Township Regular Democratic Organization will have its annual "Night at the Races" at Sportsman's Park Wednesday July 28.

Reservations for the event may be made through Dr. Thomas Kogos or Veda Kauffman at 62-1430, 823-7888 or 692-3388. The event will begin at 6 p.m.

Senate hopeful tells income

The Democratic candidate for state senator from the 5th Legislative District has released his personal income tax records and report on campaign contributions.

Tom Paul of Des Plaines, who is running against former State Rep. Richard Walsh, Forest Park, released his 1975 income tax return showing he paid $1,414 in federal taxes last year on an income of $16,269.

In addition, Paul released a report showing that as of June 11, he had received $2,967 in contributions to his campaign. The largest contribution was from the Illinois Machinists Nonpartisan Political League for $2,000.

Paul said he released the documents because "No longer should citizens take at face value verbal assurances of any candidate that there is no double-dipping or that the candidate is not involved in any business operations that could prove to be in conflict with official governmental responsibilities." Paul said he is calling on Mohr to make the same disclosures.
